Poland and Turkey Gem Burglars Deadlocked in Fight Get Big Haul In West London

Former Retains Lead During Indecisive Morning Balloting

United Nations, N. Y. — A morning of indecisive balloting in the U. N. General assembly left communist Poland and western-backed Turkey firmly deadlocked today in a contest over a seat in the security council.

The voting was expected to continue at an afternoon session.

Poland was leading throughout the balloting and at one point was only six votes short of the required two-thirds majority of those present and voting.

Poland's greatest strength was shown on the seventh and ninth ballots when it got 48 votes to 33 for Turkey.

No Early Decision

On the twelfth ballot, the vote was back virtually where it started. Poland received 46 and Turkey 35.

With both sides insisting they would stand firm, there appeared little chance of an early solution.

Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki said Poland was in the contest to stay.

Western supporters of Turkey also said they were standing firm.

There was a possibility the deadlock might continue for weeks.

Ecuador and Ceylon were elected without opposition to fill two other vacant council seats.

On the first ballot Poland received 46 votes to 33 for Turkey. On the second Poland got 43 and Turkey 38.

A U. S. spokesman said the United States would stick to Turkey indefinitely. Chief U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge said he was optimistic that Turkey would win eventually.

Poland and Turkey are contesting to succeed Japan, whose 2-year term on the security council ends Jan. 1.

Ceylon was unopposed to succeed Canada as a British commonwealth member, and Ecuador was the sole candidate for the Latin-American seat now held by Panama.

One contest also was listed for the economic and social council, between India and Japan to take the seat held by Pakistan. Unopposed candidates were Brazil, to succeed Mexico; Denmark, to succeed Finland, and Britain, Poland and the Soviet Union for reelection. The terms, also starting Jan. 1, are for three years.

Milwaukee Woman Dies of Bulbar Polio

Milwaukee — Mrs. Irvine F. Dhooge, 36-year-old wife of Milwaukee county's assistant medical examiner, died of bulbar polio Sunday night. Her death, about 24 hours after she was admitted to a hospital, was the county's first polio fatality of the year, and only the fifth case reported in 1959. She had not had Salk shots.

Raid Series of Fashionable Shops During Weekend

London — A daring band systematically raided a chain of jewelry stores in fashionable London streets over the weekend and took jewels worth 500,000 pounds ($1,400,000).

Police said it appeared to be the biggest burglary ever carried out in London's west end.

The thieves looted four shops one after another, apparently using duplicate keys to gain entry. They cleared the shelves of rings, necklaces, brooches and watches.

No one apparently saw or heard them.

The four stores belong to a group called the Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Association.

Three are in fashionable Mayfair — at Oxford circus, Piccadilly circus and the Burlington arcade, where millionaires go shopping.

The fourth, only recently acquired by the association, is a mile away, near Victoria station.

Police said the thieves appeared to have an intimate knowledge of the store chain.

Apparently they started on their round of the stores about 4 a. m. Sunday, when revelers in nearby night clubs had gone home.

The gang calmly unlocked a door of the Oxford circus shop and collected a 150,000-pound ($420,000) haul.

Three night watchmen who guard the expensive little shops of Burlington arcade, which runs off Piccadilly, never heard a thing as the thieves got in there. Police assume they clambered over the wrought iron gates which stand at each end of the arcade.

Union May Go Out Again After 80 Days Unless Settlement Is Attained

Washington — The United Steelworkers today notified President Eisenhower's fact-finders that, if forced back to work by court order, they may strike again when the 80-day injunction expires.

USW President David J. McDonald testified at the opening of hearings under the Taft-Hartley act that the 500,000 Steelworkers will end their 90-day strike "if they are required by law to do so."

"But the union will not be beaten," McDonald added.

"The basic issue will remain. There may be a truce enforced by law but there will be no permanent peace."

The paramount issue at stake, McDonald said, "is whether the companies will break the union."

The 3-man fact-finding panel headed by George W. Taylor already had made known its belief that the Taft-Hartley injunction procedure is adequate to handle major strikes.

McDonald's testimony made it clear that, unless the panel succeeds in its avowed purpose of trying to achieve a settlement by mediation and voluntary bargaining, the nationwide strike—already the longest steel shutdown in history—probably will be resumed about New Year's.

Hints at Court Fight

McDonald and the Steelworkers' chief counsel, Arthur J. Goldberg, contended that a "cooling off" injunction—the presumed next step after the fact-finders' hearing under terms of the Taft-Hartley act—is not justified by any present threat to either the national health or safety.

Goldberg gave notice, moreover, that if Eisenhower instructs the attorney general to obtain a federal district court injunction, the union will carry its resistance into the courts.

"I think it's our responsibility to do everything within the limits of our authority to settle this dispute," said Taylor, known as a skilled arbitrator of labor-management disputes. He is professor of business at the University of Pennsylvania and was chairman of the war labor board during World War II.

Help from the panel was welcomed by David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers union. If the panel can help achieve an agreement, he said, "we will be most happy."

Officially the board must determine whether continuation of the strike would cause a national emergency. In the open hearings, the steel companies were expected to argue that it would, while the union was expected to argue the opposite.

The union argument apparently would follow these lines: 1. The non-union plants, 15 per cent of the industry, have continued to operate and can supply the nation's defense needs, and 2. Although the strike has caused unemployment of 800,000, national unemployment

Public Pressure Said To Increase in Russia

when he publicly discussed consumer goods on his recent tour of Siberia, to spots he had never visited as premier.

He ordered a better supply of consumer goods to Vladivostok, the Russian port on the Pacific which is icebound for three months a year.

Letters in Papers

In a speech he told his people to dress better and get away from drab grays. He said Russia must produce more consumer goods of better quality and lower price.

What perhaps is as important as the speeches is the appearance of letters and discussions about prices in the newspapers.

Such subjects are still handled gingerly, but the Moscow paper Soviet Russia printed a letter from a worker complaining:

"I am fed up with this covering up with sputniks and airliners."

"Come down to the level of the most ordinary shoes. I have only one pair of shoes which have already lasted four years."

"Why? Because they come from the west and have a brand name from abroad."

"I am not personally in need of a TU114 (airliner). I manage with the help of the tram, but I want to lead a good life, to be well clad."

A member of the paper's staff investigated and reported the writer's fellow workers were angry at what he had written, but the reporter went on to quote other workers as saying they, too, would like more things.

The Russians were advised to learn from America how to produce goods and raise more on the farms.

"That is not idle curiosity," the article said. "Why not adopt that which is good and valuable, that which has been created by the hands of the talented American people?"

2 New York Boys Killed While Hunting

Corning, N.Y. — Two boys were shot to death over the weekend in New York state by hunters who mistook them for squirrels.

The boys were with hunting parties.

Daniel C. Cook, 11, of Corning, was killed yesterday while sitting near a tree near this south-central New York city. Adam J. Terminelli, 10, of Massena, was killed Saturday in dense underbrush near the northern New York village of Potsdam.

FTC Can't Control Rigged Quiz Shows

Not Empowered to Eliminate Deception, Chairman States

Washington — The chairman of the federal trade commission said today deceptive entertainment such as rigged TV shows is not something his agency can regulate.

Earl W. Kintner, the FTC head, told house investigators his agency has never gone beyond control of advertising which results in unfair business practices.

The house subcommittee on legislative oversight has heard testimony that questions and answers were supplied in advance to some contestants on such programs as "Twenty-One" and "Tic Tac Dough."

In reply to questions, Kintner conceded that this constituted "a gray area in the law."

He said congress could enact a law making it a criminal offense to rig a TV show, adding: "It would have a salutary effect."

Would Broaden Rules

Kintner also suggested broadening of the rules of the federal communication commission, which is the federal regulatory body for television and radio.

As for his own agency, Kintner said the FTC so far has never exercised jurisdiction over deceptive entertainment.

"In my opinion there is a serious question whether such jurisdiction exists," he said.

If the commission were to exercise censorship over entertainment, Kintner said, there is a serious question of the limit at which it should stop. It would take the commission far afield from the functions intended by congress, he added.

Complaint in 1956

Kintner said the courts have held that where no misrepresentation of products is involved, the commission has no jurisdiction.

But he said the commission staff in 1956 conducted a preliminary investigation of a complaint involving the TV quiz program, "The Big Surprise." The program went off the air, Kintner said, and the

Visit Pleases Lopez Mateos

Mexican President Sees Gains Through Personal Contact

Washington — The understanding which stems from personal contact is likely to be the primary result of his visit with President Eisenhower, Mexico's President Adolfo Lopez Mateos indicated today.

After three days of such contact the one concrete agreement mentioned by Lopez Mateos at a news conference is that the projected Diablo dam on the Rio Grande should be called "Friendship dam."

Of the advantages driving from the three days he has spent in the company of Eisenhower and other top U. S. officials, the Mexican president said:

Favors Personal Talks

"We have tried to trace the paths which will lead us to cordial results. I insist that personal contact permits a notable advance in the solution of problems."

"Cold diplomacy," he added, "does not always solve everything."

Two other subjects on which Lopez Mateos said there is agreement in principle are an increase in the exchange of students and teachers and U. S. cooperation in the creation of a Mexican laboratory for scientific investigation.

Coroner Red Simpson said that as Schilz pulled his shotgun out of the rear seat of the automobile, the gun discharged accidentally. The full force struck Schilz in the head, killing him instantly.

Investigation never got to the question of the commission authority to act.

He described the complaint as having come from a woman contestant. She alleged that the quiz show's producer questioned her in advance on her knowledge of certain subjects, purportedly to "choke her off" the program.

Farmer Killed With His Shotgun

Sheboygan — A farmer chasing marauding dogs was decapitated Sunday by a blast from his own shotgun as he pulled the weapon from the back seat of his car.

The victim, Edward Schilz, 44, of route 1, Kewaskum, set out after the dogs that had been causing damage on his property and other nearby farms. He caught up with the pack on Sheboygan County Trunk Highway HH just north of the Washington county line road.

Actress Stabbed to Death

Slayer Feared End of Romance, Sheriff Says

Brackettville, Tex. — Investigators today blamed a tottering romance for the knife slaying of a personable young actress here on location to make a movie.

Blonde Jean Ethridge, about 26, from Hollywood, Calif., Miss Ethridge died with a hunting knife in her heart early yesterday. She had just packed to leave a house she shared with five men in her summer theater troupe.

Witnesses told County Atty. John J. Tobin she gasped "I love you" to the man who stabbed her before collapsing on the living room floor.

Sheriff John Sheedy jailed brunet Chester Harvey Smith, 32, a slight 140-pounder and also from Hollywood, on a murder charge. Along with Miss Ethridge and their fellow players, he was working as an extra in the film "The Alamo."

"She was getting a better part in the movie," Sheedy said, "and she was moving out on Smith and the others. He thought he was going to lose her."

Says Memory Lost

Smith told questioners his memory was blank for several hours before and after the slaying, Sheedy said, and he could recall nothing about it.

Miss Ethridge, known professionally as LaJean Guye, and her company rented a house at Spofford, 9 miles south of here, after landing jobs in the film being produced by actor John Wayne.

Batjac Productions is shooting "The Alamo" nearby. Its set includes a painstaking reproduction of the shrine of Texas freedom, which stands 153 miles east of here in the heart of old San Antonio.

A Batjac spokesman said Wayne liked the work of Miss Ethridge and cast her as the wife of one of the soldiers with Gen. Sam Houston, leader in the war which liberated Texas from Mexico.

On Page A-17 of tonight's Post-Crescent you'll find the first of six articles by Bridge Champion Fred Sheinwald on the subject of the three-bid. Each of the articles discusses some angle of the opening bid of three in a suit: talking the enemy out of their slams, goading the opponents into bad slams, raising partner's three-bid, when to raise out of fright, the vulnerable three-bid, and the right time to sacrifice.

Bridge players will want to read each of these articles appearing daily in the Post-Crescent.

UAW Sees Need for Political Overhaul

Huge Labor Union Goes on Record As Opposing Formation of Third Party; Urge Realignment Now

Atlantic City, N.J. —A unanimous approval, the UAW declared:

"The purpose of such a conference would be to analyze the over-all economic and political situation that then confronts the American people and to mobilize liberal forces in an all-out effort to fight for liberal principles and policies in the platforms and conduct of the political parties."

The UAW convention declared yesterday that both Democratic and Republican parties need an overhaul — "if the present 2-party system is to operate more effectively in the public interest."

While the 1,200,000-member UAW went on record in its political action program against formation of a new major party, a few delegates advocated such a move.

Liberal Forces

But UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock urged delegates not to let their "frustration, resentment and bitterness" over legislative defeats in a Democratic-controlled congress lead them into a third party.

The convention urged that the national AFL-CIO "explore with other groups the possibility of calling a national conference of labor, farm and other liberal forces in the spring of 1960 prior to the convening of both party conventions."

In a resolution that won unanimous approval, the UAW declared:

"The purpose of such a conference would be to analyze the over-all economic and political situation that then confronts the American people and to mobilize liberal forces in an all-out effort to fight for liberal principles and policies in the platforms and conduct of the political parties."

Secretary - Treasurer Emil Mazey joined Woodcock in advising against a movement for a third party. But Mazey's brother, Ernest, sided with the few who dissented.

"We ought to consider a party of laborers, farmers, Negroes and liberals," he declared.

Three Die on State Highways Over Weekend

Milwaukee — Three deaths during the weekend raised the Wisconsin traffic toll for 1959 to 632, compared with 628 on this day a year ago.

Mrs. Matie Wandrey, 67, of Berlin was killed at 8:30 p. m. Sunday when the car in which she was riding was involved in a collision with another auto on Highway 49 just south of Berlin.

Mrs. Walter Granmoe, 31, of Adolph, Wis., was killed Sunday when the automobile she was driving struck a bridge abutment and veered across the highway into the path of another vehicle. The accident occurred on Highway 53 about three miles north of Solon Springs in Douglas county.

Jacob Kloss, 78, South Milwaukee, was killed Saturday night when he was struck by an automobile as he crossed a street near his home.

Actress Helen Hayes To Be Grandmother

Hollywood — Actress Helen Hayes is to become a grandmother next May.

Her son, actor James MacArthur, telephoned his studio here Sunday that his wife, actress Joyce Bulfinch, is expecting.

The couple married last November in Solebury, Pa. MacArthur is now in Tobago, British West Indies, on a film location.

Seek Murder Warrant in Wife Slaying

Milwaukee Man Admits Cutting Up, Burying Body

Milwaukee — A murder warrant will be sought Tuesday against Francisco Micala, the 74-year-old retired factory worker who admitted killing his wife and dismembering her body with an ax.

Micala was held in the city jail over the weekend after he went to police Saturday and said, "I killed my wife. I come here to be locked up."

Dist. Atty. William McCauley said he would seek a first degree murder warrant against Micala.

The warrant could not be obtained today because McCauley's office and the courts were closed for Columbus day.

Admits Killing

Detective Capt. Charles Nowakowski said Micala admitted killing his wife Aug. 11 in an argument after she ordered him out of the house.

The dismembered body of Micala's wife, Rosalia, 66, was found buried under the front porch of their small home on the city's lower east side.

Micala told Nowakowski that he struck his wife with his fist during the argument and that she toppled down a flight of stairs. He said he then took her limp form to the basement where he dismembered her body with an ax and a knife, wrapped the pieces separately and buried them.

Went to Church

Micala told police he had gone to church every day since killing his wife and that each time he returned he looked under the porch. He said he decided to go to police after attending mass Saturday morning.

Nowakowski said Micala told him he and his wife had argued for many months.

No Remorse

But Palmer glanced away for a moment and Gorman, husky Jerseyville police commissioner, slapped the rifle away and knocked Palmer down.

Palmer confessed, apparently without remorse, the killing of Thomas L. Nelson, 40-year-old proprietor of a St. Louis county, Mo., bait and tackle shop, Sept. 12, and a waitress, Mrs. Hazel Riley, in nearby Wood River, Ill., Sept. 15.

Last night he said to deputy Sheriff Mel Leach, "I think there's something else I ought to tell you."

He said he shot a filling station attendant in Humboldt, Tenn., on Sept. 24, but didn't know how seriously he had wounded the man. A telephone check disclosed that a Billy

"But I'll tell you, it hasn't been easy. I've turned down an offer of $500 for it."

A trade newspaper in Moscow said yesterday that Adrian had been offered $5,000 for the hat. Adrian said he hadn't heard of it.

But Adrian says there is one possibility that could lead him to auction the hat off.

Youth Admits Third Cold-Blooded Murder

James Palmer Tells Police He Shot to Death Filling Station Man Sept. 24

Jerseyville, Ill. — A third cold-blooded murder has been admitted by James Palmer, 22, who was found shot to death in a Humboldt filling station Sept. 24.

All three persons were slain in a similar manner—shot in the back of the head with .22-caliber weapons. Nelson and Mrs. Riley were each shot six times with a semi-automatic rifle. Palmer said he used a semi-automatic pistol on Marshall.

Less Than $300

He got less than $300 from the three. Police said Mrs. Riley apparently was raped, but Palmer denied raping her.

Wood River police questioned Palmer a few days after Mrs. Riley's body was found on a lonely country road because his car resembled one seen in the vicinity the night she disappeared. But it was found that a .22 caliber pistol he owned wasn't the one used in the killing and he was released.

He and his 16-year-old bride, Naomi, then went on a trip that took them to Kentucky, the southwest and California.

Others At Church

The girl he sought, a sister and their mother were at church. Only Lila Lynn and her father were home. She was watching television. The father was in bed.

The prosecutor said Paquette told him he joined Lila in watching TV for about an hour, then invited her out to his car to see a present he had brought.

Konstenius said that when the girl went out the youth slipped a rope around her neck and strangled her and left her body on the front lawn.

Konstenius said Paquette then re-entered the house and went into a bedroom where the father slept. A noise awoke the father and he spoke to the youth for a few minutes. When he turned his head to get a cigaret a .22-caliber bullet was fired into the back of his skull, killing him instantly.

Boy, 16, Held In Michigan For Slayings

Strangles Girl, 10, Then Kills Father At L'Anse Home

L'Anse, Mich. — A 10-year-old girl was strangled and her father shot to death last night. A 16-year-old boy friend of an older sister was arrested as their killer.

Held is Eugene Paquette of L'Anse, who authorities said interrupted television-watching to strangle Lila Lynn Frosland and then shot her father, Edward Frosland, 44, in bed.

William G. Konstenius, Baraga county prosecutor, said Paquette orally admitted both slayings, but gave no motive and did not reveal where he got the gun.

Konstenius said Paquette, a highly respected schoolboy and L'Anse drum and bugle corps member, went to the Frosland's Upper Peninsula home 10 miles northeast of L'Anse to see one of two older Frosland daughters.

Describe Training of Soviet Spacemen in Red Magazine Article

Tests are Designed to Simulate Rocket Flights Up to 300 Miles

Moscow — The training of Soviet spacemen has been described for the first time in some detail by the magazine Ogonek. The training appears designed primarily to simulate conditions of rocket flights up to 300 miles.

The Russians say some of their experimental dogs have returned safely to earth as many as four times from such high altitude flights.

It has been expected here for some time that the next step in Soviet space exploration will be to send a man into the outer reaches of the earth's atmosphere with the hope of bringing him back alive.

Lunik Heads Back

Ogonek's article came out this weekend as Lunik III, a 614-pound Soviet flying laboratory, was reported to have headed back toward earth from a week's flight 291,650 miles out in space, designed to send it around the hidden side of the moon.

The magazine named three space trainers—Alexei Grachev, Alexei Belokonev and Ivar Kachur. Their program appears to resemble that undertaken in the United States by seven officers of the U. S. armed forces.

"Man will climb to the great altitudes in hermetically closed cabins and in special protective dress," said Ivanovich Bakar, one of the scientific space flight trainers quoted by Ogonek. "Now you will see it. Alexei Grachev will climb into the upper layers of the atmosphere.

Protective Dress

"They dress Grachev in a protective dress which fits tightly to the body and put a hermetic helmet on his head. The man looks like some fantastic inhabitant of Mars. He takes his place in the chamber. The massive steel doors close. Now the man is connected with the external world only by a speaking device. The engines start roaring. Grachev is 'separated' from the earth and soars into the grim high altitude area."

The protective dress guards Grachev against the steadily reduced atmospheric pressure, Ogonek went on, and he responds "good" when questioned about his well-being. Instruments show his heart beat, breathing and blood pressure are normal.

Restoration of air to the chamber simulates the return of the trainee to the earth.

Nikita's Gift Hat Keeping 'Frisco Man Awake Nights

San Francisco — A gray felt hat, high crowned and wide brimmed, is keeping Dave Adrian awake nights. And part of the reason is a friend who has never seen the hat.

The almost formless fedora used to belong to one of the world's most well known men, Nikita Khrushchev.

Adrian is a San Francisco longshoreman who impulsively whipped off his own white working cap and presented it to the Soviet premier when Khrushchev visited San Francisco last month.

Khrushchev, in return, gave Adrian his gray fedora. Suddenly Adrian had something that a lot of people wanted.

"I intend to keep it," he smiles, "even if many people I owe money to wonder why I don't sell my hat."

"But I'll tell you, it hasn't been easy. I've turned down an offer of $500 for it."

A trade newspaper in Moscow said yesterday that Adrian had been offered $5,000 for the hat. Adrian said he hadn't heard of it.

But Adrian says there is one possibility that could lead him to auction the hat off.

A young friend, Tom Ferry, attends the University of San Francisco. Tom, blind since he was five, hopes to become a lawyer. And the priests at the Catholic university have helped him some.

He still needs money to live on and money to pay a reader who helps him with his studies.

"The only thing that could get me to auction this hat," says Adrian, "is if there's no other way to get money to keep Tom in school."

Khrushchev, in return, gave Adrian his gray fedora. Suddenly Adrian had something that a lot of people wanted.

"I intend to keep it," he smiles, "even if many people I owe money to wonder why I don't sell my hat."

"But I'll tell you, it hasn't been easy. I've turned down an offer of $500 for it."

A trade newspaper in Moscow said yesterday that Adrian had been offered $5,000 for the hat. Adrian said he hadn't heard of it.

Bridge Opening Dates Delayed

Weather, Labor Troubles Held Up College, Oneida Span Work

Opening dates for both bridges under construction in Appleton have been pushed back, engineers have revealed.

The $1 million College avenue high level bridge was scheduled for traffic about Dec. 1. Now it looks like December, but much later in the month, the district office of the state highway commission said.

The $750,000 Oneida street drawbridge was scheduled for traffic by Feb. 23. Now it appears the opening will have to wait until well into spring or early summer.

Rain last week probably didn't stall the high bridge project, but labor trouble involving a power tower replacement may have set things back as much as two weeks, the district highway office said.

The outlook for "sometime later in December" doesn't take into account, the highway office admitted, the early coming of freeze or prolonged cold weather.

Finishing Work
Workmen for the state contractors last week were completing steel erection. They have finished about half the concrete pour for the 30-foot-wide roadway of the bridge proper.

There remains some minor finishing work on the three streets which converge to an intersection on the south approach to the bridge, and preparatory work before pouring two lanes of concrete is nearly finished on the College avenue approach across the river.

The bridge roadway will be flanked by 6-foot sidewalks on both sides. It is to be built of seven inches of reinforced concrete.

All approaches taper as they meet old roadway surfaces, but are 52 feet wide at their widest points. Approaches are to be built of nine inches of concrete and 12 inches of gravel and granular sub-base.

On the Oneida street drawbridge project, workmen for the city contractor are about half finished with pouring concrete for the north abutment. The south abutment is complete.

Rain Slows Pace
The hole at the north abutment into which the counterweight will be placed is finished. What remains to be done is four of an estimated six pours to form the two piers and walls of the pit and abutment.

Rain has slowed the pace sought for reconstructing the south approach from McKinley street to the steel decking of the bridge.

Grading may be finished in a few days and a few more days will be spent laying the required seven inches of gravel. Then will come pouring of nine inches of concrete top.

Concrete paving of the north approach — between the railroad tracks and the bridge — will have to wait until dry weather next spring. That means the old swing bridge will be used by Oneida street traffic throughout the winter.

Opening of the $1 Million high bridge over the Fox river to connect College avenue and the Walter avenue-John street intersection has been moved back to late December. The last of steel erection, shown in progress, is expected this week. Concrete pouring for the roadway is about half complete. All approaching streets to the south are finished, but a major share of work on the College avenue north approach remains. When all work is done and the bridge open, the old E. John street low level span, right, will be removed, along with a short bridge across a canal.

Alcohol Often Dulls Sense Of Shyness, Inhibitions

By Joseph G. Molner, M. D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is a very mild person, easy-going, helpful around the house, fun to be with, just an all-around 'nice guy.' He loves the children, his home, and life in general.

"But when he drinks (and he seems to be more frequently) he's just the opposite—mean, foul-mouthed, loud, etc. If things don't go smoothly at work, or if someone says something he doesn't like—boom, off he goes.

"Is it true that a person shows his true self when he's drunk? That thought is frightening!

"Is drinking or alcoholism hereditary? Is it because there is a vitamin deficiency in the body? Please write about this.—Anxious."

Let's dispose of the easy ones first: No, drinking is not hereditary. Remember that children will tend to live the way they are brought up, however. (But naturally under circumstances children will rebel—the child of a drunkard often abhors liquor.)

No, drinking apparently is not the result of a vitamin deficiency, although the excessive alcoholic often eats very little and thus acquires a vitamin deficiency.

Not "True Self"

For your big question, alcohol relaxes the inhibitions. Under the influence of it, a person may do things he would not otherwise do—but has a hankering to do.

This does not, however, mean that drinking brings out the "true self."

Many of us have a streak of shyness. We wait for the other fellow to begin to make friends. Alcohol very often dulls the sense of shyness and one makes friends easily. (Hence, perhaps, the genesis of the cocktail party, although it is not a foregone conclusion that you will be pleased, when sober, with the "friends" you acquired at the cocktail party.)

The unduly meek person

tient, or limitlessly aggressive.

As for the business of overcoming our shy streaks occasionally, I dare say that's good. But deliver me, please, from living in a world peopled only by extroverts!

The easy-going, helpful chap sometimes swallows more troubles and affronts than he can digest. A balancing streak of loud aggressiveness builds up, and has to be released. This may be your husband's trouble. It isn't uncommon. He's not naturally mean, loud and foul-mouthed, but he has to get rid of those pressures.

Active sports, or even quiet sports like bridge, poker, chess and arguments help us get rid of the aggressiveness that has to get out. It could be that your husband has to learn some tricks of blowing off steam harmlessly, instead of letting things pile up until alcohol turns the spigot and the built-up pressures explode harmfully.

Lawrence Class of '54 Contributes Two

BY MARGUERITE SCHUMANN

A 30-year drought in Rhodes scholars at Lawrence college was broken in a big way by the brainy class of 1954.

The last Rhodes scholar in even the old timers' recollection had been Keville Larson, Neenah, who graduated in 1920, and won his Oxford scholarship a couple of years later.

Then a pair of classmates in '54 both won the coveted prize of studying at the ancient English seat of learning: Elmer Pfefferkorn, Manitowoc, won in his senior year (the only Lawrence man to be selected while still an undergraduate); and Michael Hammond, Appleton, was picked two years later after he had already studied in India on a Rotary scholarship.

Neither had been inconspicuous boys at Lawrence; at Oxford — where anonymity is much easier to preserve in the face of traditional British reserve — they were not inconspicuous boys, either. Elmer excelled in individual sports like tennis and squash, became the university champion in the latter sport, and broke his arm for dear old Oxford. Mike, who was an old hand at student government ever since he was elected president of Boys' Nation as a high school senior, became the first American to be elected student president of Oriel college.

Scholarly Mien

Pfefferkorn wore the usual badge of a serious scholar—dark horn rimmed glasses—but in all other regards he was a most unusual young man.

Only one semester of his eight at Lawrence was his scholastic record anything but a perfect 3.00—that one fall from grace gave him a cumulative record of 2.962. He was president or vice president of just about everything in sight; he won the Junior Spoon as the outstanding man of that class, the Spector cup as the outstanding senior and was a Phi Beta Kappa.

During his senior year in college (he was a pre-medical student), he lavished many hours on a family of 25 white rats and uncounted hibernating frogs in the interests of his honors paper (he murmured something about "trying to decide which isomer is responsible for specific biological effects"). When he studied, he was wont to devote half his brain to the muscles of a cat, the other half to "La Traviata" on the phonograph.

Read German Novels

When he read for fun, it was German novels in the original language; in the summer, he refreshed himself after jobs in a vinegar factory, pea canery and with a paint crew by building box kites strong enough to carry a camera aloft.

Elmer got his Oxford B.A. in animal physiology from Trinity college, and is now doing an equally brilliant job at Harvard medical school.

Hammond compiled an outstanding record at Appleton High school, which was climaxed by his election as president of Boys' Nation in Washington, D. C. When he wasn't involved in student government, he was singing, for he was a member and spokesman for a male quartet which started to sing together in seventh grade and survived until they graduated from Lawrence. The Barbershop quartet ranked third in one international competition, and won several district prizes.

Studied in India

At Lawrence, he was a Phi Beta Kappa and was active in music and theater work. During his senior year, he was named winner of a Rotary scholarship, and the next fall was off to New Delhi, where he studied philosophy for a year.

In company with another Rotary scholar, he made an 8-week, 5,000-mile tour of India on $100—traveling third class, sleeping rolled up in a blanket on railway station platforms, cleaning himself off with water from a cup at the public water fountain.

The young men visited 300 temples, and observed a large number of religious festivals.

One of his most colorful recollections of India was a visit with Tensing, the world-famed sherpa who guided the British expedition up Mount Everest and was one of the first two to conquer the highest peak in the world.

Mountain Climber

He infected Mike with the climbing fever, and Hammond subsequently climbed 15,000 feet up to the snow line of one of the Himalayan peaks and Europe, traveling the latter continent on an Italian motorscooter, with a guitar slung over his shoulder for artistic ballast.

For a year he worked out of Appleton as an admissions counselor for Lawrence, then was off to Europe again, this time on his Rhodes grant. He returned from Oxford in May, 1959, and turned his attention to writing while working in Eagle River.

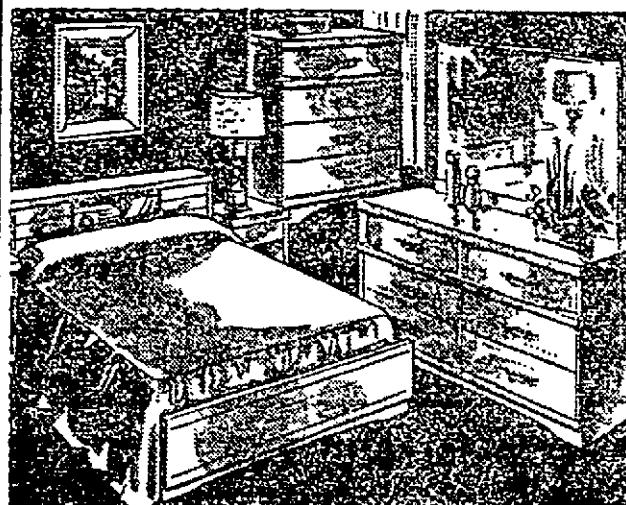

At present, Hammond is at the University of Wisconsin, where he holds a grant as a research physiologist. He is working toward the M.D. and Ph.D. degrees concurrently.

Reading the Record Is an Old Game

The Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce recently published a report on roll calls in the Wisconsin legislature intended to show which members supported measures of importance to Wisconsin business-men.

While we have no confidence in a partisan "reading of the record" by any group, this activity by the state chamber nevertheless is significant in Wisconsin politics. The publishing of the roll call seems to indicate that the directors of the state chamber feel support for business can be a political asset in this state. That is something new. For many years, public officials in Wisconsin have thought it unwise to be closely identified with business. This was chiefly because the political loud mouths in Wisconsin usually had referred to all business as big business on the political stump although privately they would acknowledge that commerce was a thing to be encouraged.

Beginning early in the LaFollette regime about 50 years ago and down to the present, Wisconsin always has had some speakers pleading for the common man, the downtrodden and the poor, while they made it appear that anybody in even a 1-man business was allied with "big business" to prey upon the "little people."

In recent years there has been a change in the attitude toward business. Today both parties in Wisconsin are committed to the general policy of promoting industrial development. That means in a sense the support of business. Thus when a legislator is accused of having a record of 100 per cent opposition to legislation favored by business he is in effect a man without a party for both parties are committed to whatever policies will be best for the development of business. This is because both parties know very well that the state which lags behind in the field of industrial development also lags behind in all the good things that industry provides, including jobs, wages, leisure time, better health conditions and in fact all of those things that come with a greater distribution of wealth.

But in this field, as in all others, there is bound to be a difference of opinion as to how best to support an industrial development program.

Thus when Wisconsin voters read a poll which purports to show which legislators voted in the "public interest," as one Madison newspaper describes its report, there certainly will be a questioning of the items selected for the roll call. It is inevitable that some people will notice that the poll reflects the personal opinion of the editor of that newspaper as to what the public interest is. Likewise, when readers study the poll put out by the Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce many of them will note that the items selected for consideration reflect the opinion of the directors of the state chamber. Not all people, and indeed not all business, will agree with the choice. There can be no serious objection to the publishing of such polls but as usual the readers will have to take note of the omissions as well as the items included if they are to get a fair picture of the legislature.

The Search for a New Polio Vaccine

Recently there have been items in the news to the effect that scientists are on the verge of discovering a pill which may be taken orally to ward off polio. The latest such report came from the University of Kansas Medical Center. It is, of course, highly desirable that scientists pursue the search for a simple method of immunization. Such a pill might succeed in wiping out polio simply because of the ease of administering it. However, it certainly is unfortunate that the publicity on such experiments tends to slow up the use of the Salk vaccine which is a very successful method of immunization.

This year, through the end of September, there have been 3,728 paralytic cases compared with 1,798 for the corresponding period in 1958. In 1955, the first year the Salk polio vaccine was made available, there were 7,405 paralytic cases for the same period. Thus, it is apparent that the Salk vaccine cut sharply into the number of paralytic cases in the years from 1955 up to 1958 and this year has seen a decided rise in the number of cases. The reduction in the number of cases was due to the fact that people have been lulled into a false sense of security and now are paying for their neglect.

Some day in the near future we hope there will be a polio pill which will be taken orally and produce lifelong immunity. But that time is not yet. The remedy available today is the Salk vaccine and parents should make use of it now rather than risk a case of paralytic polio in the family while they are waiting for a drug that is easier to take.

Advance in Algeria

The chances of peace in Algeria had another boost this month when the provisional government of Algeria, the official organ of the national liberation movement, announced its readiness "to enter into pourparlers with the French government to discuss the political and military conditions of the cease-fire, the conditions and guarantees for the application of self-determination."

This does not mean that officials of both sides now will get together and set up the machinery for peace and a referendum. The French government does not and, at this time, does not recognize the provisional government as representative of the Algerians. The right wing in France, members of the army in Algeria and the Algerian Europeans undoubtedly would not tolerate such a move by their government which they already feel has made too many concessions in offering the Algerians a chance at self-determination. Moreover, the fanatics in the national liberation movement will continue to demonstrate for independence or nothing.

But the action of the provisional government, after several days of careful study of President de Gaulle's offers, is actually as full of concessions as those made by the French government. They have conceded that the people of Algeria should choose their own future by means of a referendum. They assume that the choice will be independence but the emphasis now is upon the right of choice rather than independence. They have scuttled their earlier insistence upon independence first and an end to the fighting second. They have even seemed to have abandoned their own self-nomination as the future government of Algeria and now are underlining the "provisional" aspect.

Certainly the strength of the French army and the apparent determination of the French to continue fighting influenced this decision as well as President de Gaulle's consideration of independence as a possibility for the future although a tragic one. The tactful discussions of representatives of Tunisia and Morocco with the growing distrust of communism in those countries and their economic reliance upon France has probably helped and could go far in bringing about a final settlement.

There may be many months before there is a real cease-fire in Algeria. But if peace and justice are the real aims of both sides, concessions can be safely made so that they will eventually be able to meet.

What Others are Saying

Hearings, Reform Bill Consolidate Labor

From The Baltimore Sun

Three years of corruption hearings capped by the stiff new labor-reform law have severely jolted organized labor. Plainly labor had to react and now, at the AFL-CIO's national convention in San Francisco, the direction of that reaction is beginning to emerge. It is toward consolidation of labor power with a new emphasis on labor's authority over its own affairs. Some of the prospects are promising.

The least reassuring of the San Francisco decisions is the restoration to membership of the one-time pariahs of the labor movement, the longshoremen. Doubtless Mr. Meany was right in his contention that the longshoremen have come a long way from the corruption and hoodlumism which led to their expulsion from the AFL six years ago. It is also possible that a return to membership may permit closer supervision than is possible while the union was exiled. At the same time an ominous segment of the old, malodorous core is still intact and it is well that the union's return is kept tentative.

The convention's more interesting development was an agreement among the leaders at last upon a means to end the cat-and-dog wrangles which have plagued the labor movement from its very first years of organization. Even after the merger four years ago, the AFL-CIO had one central weakness: There was no recognized way to settle disputes between rival unions contending for the same field. Now, if only in principle, the executive council has agreed to brace that weakness with a labor-wide agreement to submit disputes to arbitration. Details of the arbitration machinery have still to be worked out for insertion in the AFL-CIO constitution.

Surely this is a substantial advance in the direction of the labor responsibility shown by the McClellan hearings to be so often lacking. Labor leaders, in effect, seem to be moving toward an internal law and order at last and toward making of their hitherto shambling, contentious organization something more than a

This Is What Nikita, Mao Celebrated

Editor, Post-Crescent:

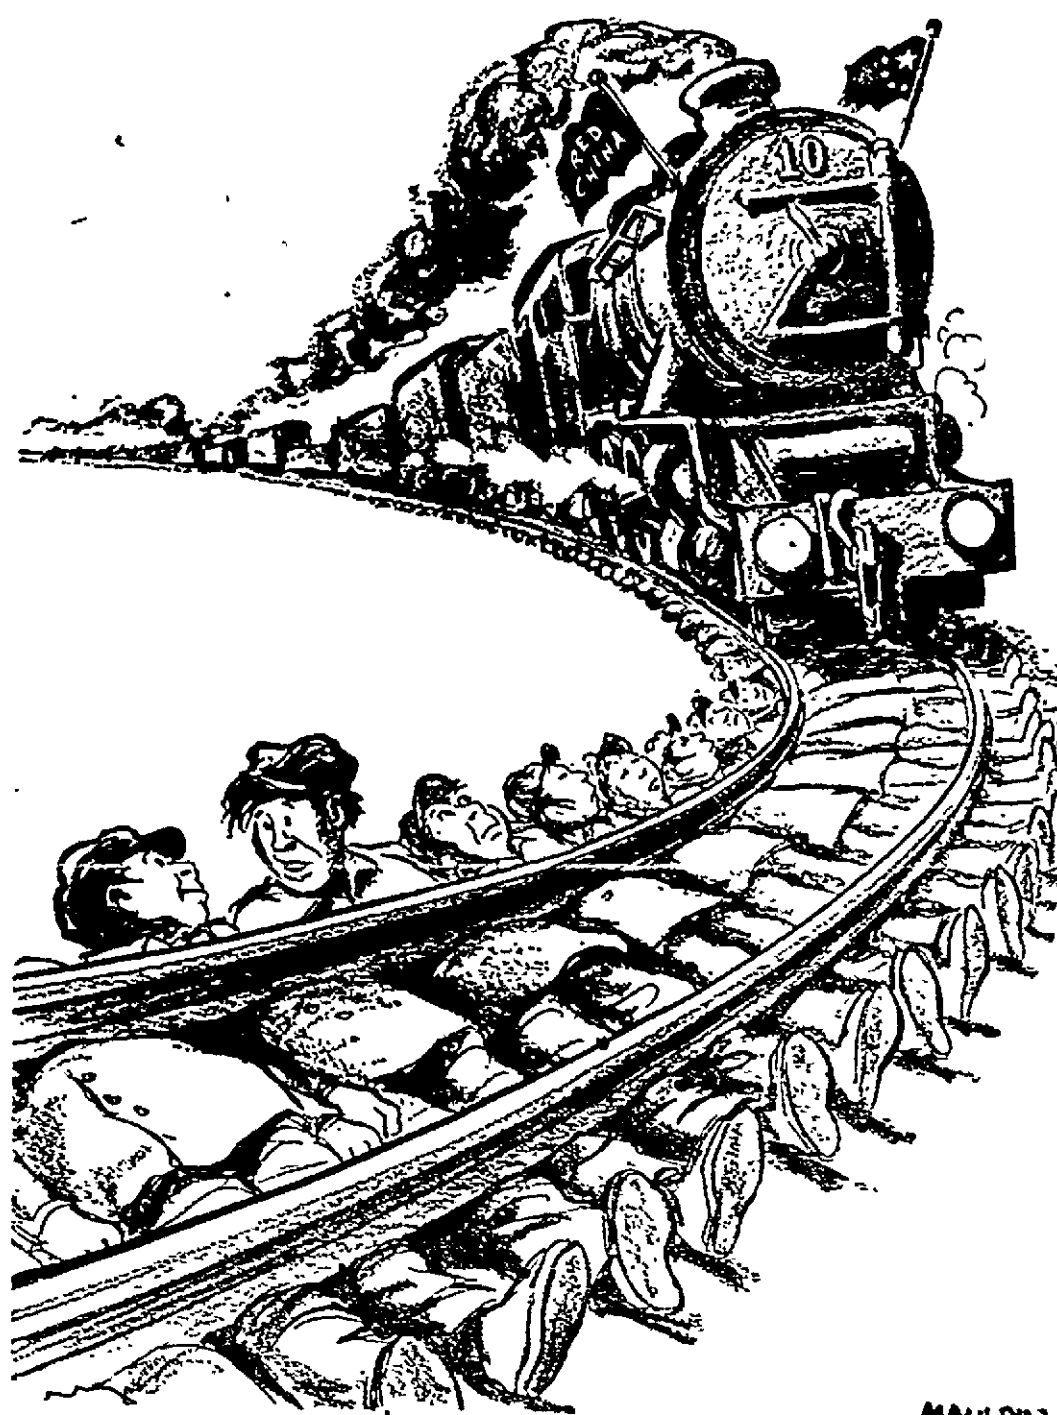

On his return from the United States, Nikita Khrushchev flew to Peking to join in the 10th anniversary of the Red Chinese takeover of mainland China.

According to Chinese Republic government sources, in those ten years the Chinese communists massacred 29,000,000 people in the name of the class struggle. They threw 40,000,000 people into slave labor camps, confiscated 263,520,000 acres of farmland from 120,000,000 farmers, liquidated 4,000,000 private business enterprises, brainwashed 5,000,000 intellectuals, and killed 2,200 foreign missionaries. In addition, they brought death and disability to 1,500,000 men in the Korean War.

This is what Nikita Khrushchev and Mao Tse-tung celebrated in Peking on October 1st.

Suggests Older Baby-Sitters When Family Has Small Children

Editor, Post-Crescent:

May I say a few words to the lady who is "Just About Fed Up" with baby sitters?

Some of your points are well taken. Any girl who does baby-sitting can learn to put on a diaper. She ought to check on a crying baby and see that sleeping children are covered up. But don't expect too much of girls in their teens, especially the younger ones. A girl of 13 is little more than a child herself and cannot be expected to remain wide awake far into the night. If you plan to be out late hire an older girl or a grown woman. If you find that a particular girl goes sound asleep even at an early hour, simply don't hire her again for evening work.

It is not easy to teach a girl how to feed and burp a baby without having a real baby on hand; and not all sitters are expected to do that. Our babies (not the older children) were always fed and generally asleep before the sitter arrived. If you expect a girl to feed your baby, ask her in advance if she knows how. If you cannot get an experienced girl, then ask one to come early and give her a few instructions. Your way of doing things may differ from her's anyway.

Why not take a few minutes to rinse out the bottle and straighten up the living room yourself? Haven't you any pride about how your home looks when a sitter arrives? If you want her to do these things, tell her. She may be timid about doing anything she isn't told to do; and she may well feel that it would reflect on your housekeeping if she undertook to "straighten up the living room."

Try to find a reliable girl, or two or three, and call them regularly when you need a sitter. Teach them what you expect and how you want things done; and pay them accordingly. I think a girl who feeds and cares for a baby, washes dishes, and does other tasks should receive more money than a girl who only sits and looks in occasionally upon sleeping children.

Always remember that girls from 13 to 17 are not grown women. They differ widely in experience and ability, as you yourself implied. The best of them still have much to learn and some growing up to do. A few of them ought never to be employed as sitters at all. Others may well need some instructions from their mothers and more explicit directions from their employers.

I know you have a problem. I sympathize with you. But I am afraid you expect a little more initiative than many girls this age possess.

A Baby-Sitter's Mother Has Observations, Too

Editor, Post-Crescent:

This is a plea to "some" parents who leave their children in charge of a baby sitter.

All it takes is a few minutes of your time to explain to your sitter what you expect of her. Show her where the diaper pail is. You might change the baby before you leave and show the girl how. If you want the job done. Mothers vary. Do you pin the shirt to the diaper or don't you? Powder or oil? Double diaper or single? What is the magic word your child uses that leads him to the bathroom? Some otherwise intelligent fathers are equally ignorant of some aspects of child-care. And they live in the house!

Perhaps you come home and find your sitter sound asleep because you told her you'd be home an hour earlier. High school students are very active during the day — they study and play hard. On school nights be sure that you keep your word about the time you'll get home.

Don't you remember how you watched the clock when you baby-sat? Your eyes kept shutting and the minutes passed so slowly. If you went to sleep, you knew you'd be hard to awaken. If you managed to stay awake, you knew you'd fall asleep in school the next day.

The baby sitter's parents wish that prior to rushing out the door, you would leave instructions. When is the baby to be fed? Does he sleep on his back or his stomach? Is he sick? Where can you be reached by telephone?

Be sure that your baby-sitter is taken home by a dependable driver. If the matter is in doubt, please call a cab. It won't cost as much as the last drink you took. We love and cherish our

State Colleges Show Tremendous Growth

BY E. R. MCPHEE

Director Of The State Colleges
Madison — This past decade has been one of striking growth in quality and quantity within the Wisconsin State College system.

It is evident to virtually all that the number of students attending the nine colleges has increased at an unparalleled rate, as have instructional and physical facilities.

Less apparent, but equally important, is the solidly maturing reputation of the schools — individually and collectively — as through their own efforts and growth they win the support and confidence of the diverse citizen groups they serve.

Such strides forward, of course, would have been impossible during this era without the continued support of the state government which has responded quickly and well to the needs developing.

Ten years ago there were 8,010 students in the nine colleges, while this fall the total enrollment climbed close to 14,500. Teachers increased from 592 to 930.

Several factors have been responsible. There has been a greater interest in teacher education, and the state college system still has, as one of its primary functions, the preparation of teachers for public, rural, elementary, and high schools of Wisconsin.

Recent years have seen a rising interest in higher education generally among students and their parents. Where one or two youths out of a group of 50 went to school previously, 17 or 18 now are attending.

RETENTION

Better retention of students once they are in college, as well as the enrichment of programs offered at the schools, especially the establishment of the liberal arts offerings in 1951, have been factors. The increased availability of college-owned housing, a growth in the number transferring in from other schools, and the increased plentitude of scholarships and loans have also aided the enrollment increase.

There had been little construction on any campus before the second World war, save perhaps for a main building which housed the administrative offices and classrooms, and possibly a physical education structure. And not too much was done in the years immediately following 1945. But starting about 1949 the state college system enjoyed the benefits of a tremendous building boom which is still in progress. Dormitories, almost unheard of structures in the past, were erected and now house a good percentage of those enrolled. Additional facilities, such as libraries, students unions, and diverse academic buildings, have also been added to virtually every campus.

College libraries greatly increased their collections of books, periodicals, and newspaper files.

The quality of the staff has increased steadily, keeping pace with the increase in quantity. A great many faculty members either held earned doctorates or are completing work on this final and necessary degree. Many now are engaged in research or public relations, when they can spare time for such extra activities from heavy teaching duties.

And a number are achieving wide-spread recognition in these areas. For example, Dr. Donald Warner of the Eau Claire State college history department recently won the $1,000 prize offered by the Mississippi Valley Historical association for the best manuscript in American history.

CULTURAL CENTERS

The colleges are also becoming recognized cultural centers for the geographic areas they tend to serve. By bringing in outside talent — musical, theatrical, or intellectual — they give to the area something necessary, important, and perhaps unavailable without the college's presence.

When needs arise for consultation, and the colleges have consultants available, the needs are happily met. To their respective areas, furthermore, the colleges send graduates to teach the youth, and provide educational leadership, testing, guidance, conferences, clinics, athletic facilities, and numerous other services.

It is becoming increasingly — and frighteningly — evident that developments within the next decade, especially in the sphere of enrollments, may completely eclipse all that has taken place previously.

In 1958 there were some 60,000 college students in Wisconsin, but various estimates see the 1970 college population ranging in size from 110,000 to 200,000. If the same percentage of those attending the state colleges continues, the total enrollment at the nine institutions might run anywhere from 30,000 to 50,000.

Rules Protect '59 Stock Purchaser

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Even if you recall the cataclysm in Wall street 30 years ago and the national degradation and despair to which it led, surely you find it hard to believe now how wild and unrestricted manipulation in the stock market was then.

There were no rules to guide or protect the public.

The few requirements of the New York Stock exchange were so lax, so indifferently administered, they were worse than nothing.

Pools of operators could send the price of a stock skyrocketing by selling shares to each other. When they had their millions in paper profits, they would unload on the gullible.

Duped Little Men
Promoters could brazenly tout stock tips by every means. When they had put up the price of a stock enough to make a fortune for themselves, they would let the greedy public in.

Trusted tycoons could intensify the chaos by selling stock they didn't own in the plunging markets so they could buy back the stock at lower prices, cover their sales and walk away with fantastic profits.

Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the Chase bank and a key member of the group formed to stabilize the stock market in 1929, actually made $4 million in that period selling short the stock of his own bank.

Lack of Laws Obvious
Utterly unscrupulous businessmen could issue new stock to the public and lie in their teeth without fear about what the stocks were worth. There was no law forcing them to tell the truth.

Famous corporations could refuse to tell reporters or stockholders an iota about their affairs. There was no law saying they had to give out any information.

Each illustration is more hair-raising than the next, and I submit them with reason. For, while the stock market collapse reflected the fundamental rot in our economy, there is no doubt that the Wall street aggravated and prolonged the disaster.

Today there are basic laws and regulations which guarantee that any price drop will not be made worse by illegal manipulation.

Several Protective Acts
As a direct result of the 1929 holocaust, on our statute books are the securities acts of 1933 and 1934, the utility act of 1935, the investment company and investment advisers acts of 1940.

Now we have a securities and exchange commission which is a watchdog over the securities markets and while, as SEC Chairman Edward N. Gadsby puts it, the law cannot prevent price gyrations, it has freed the markets of the sinister influences which in 1929 caused so much distress and tragedy.

Now pool operations and bear raids on stocks by ruthless short selling have been outlawed.

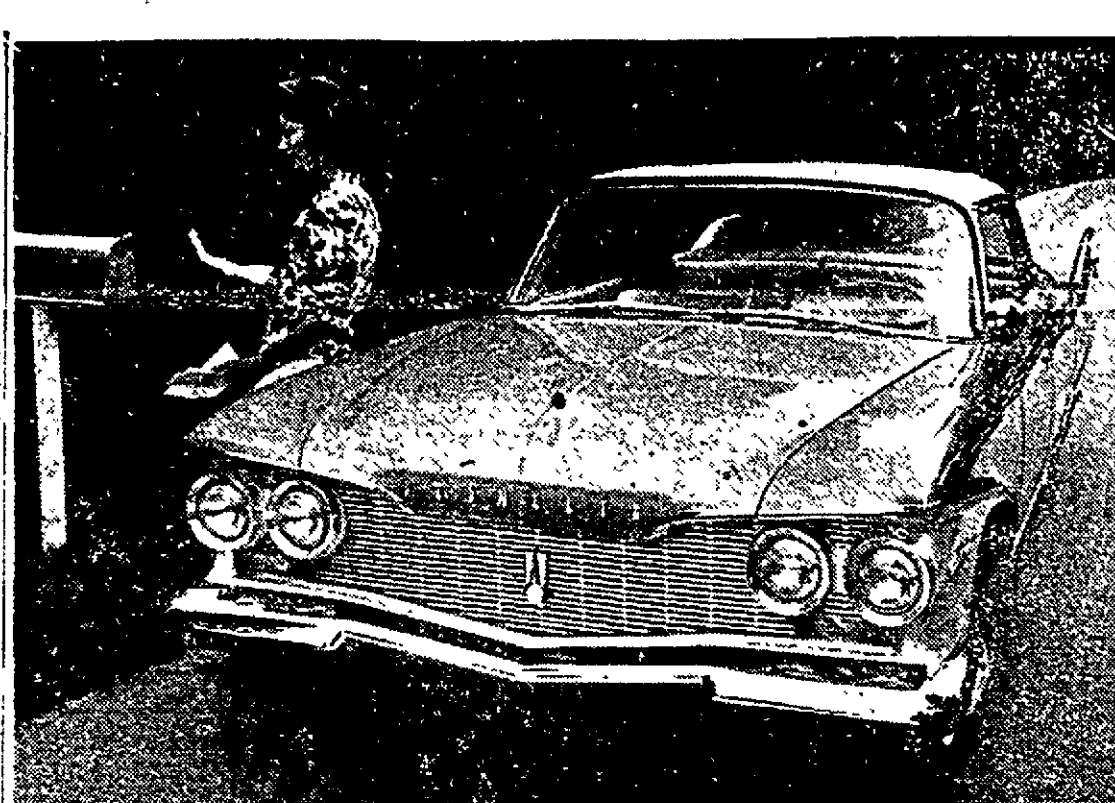

Now corporations are compelled to reveal all key facts when they issue new securities, and to publish regularly adequate financial statements certified by independent accountants.

Exchange Rules Strict
Also as a direct result of the 1929 crash, the securities industry is policing itself as never before. In many ways, the New York Stock exchange's rules, on disclosure of vital information and on regular reports by listed companies are far more severe than the SEC's.

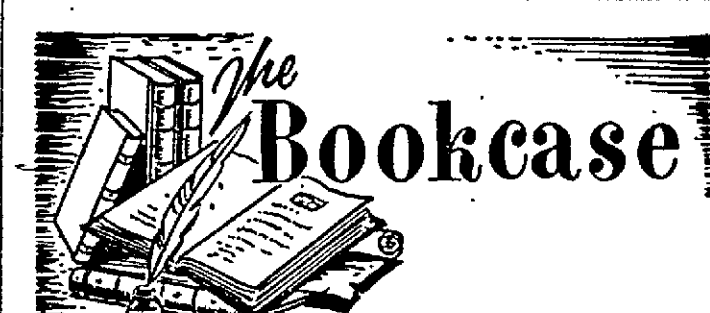

No honest observer would even pretend the crooks have been banished, or the protective laws and rules are yet adequate. Stock swindles again are on a deeply disturbing scale, and tomorrow I'll report on proposals being made to tighten control and policing.

Nevertheless, a vital safeguard for Wall street and for us in 1959 lies in the laws, rules and machinery we have created since 1929 to control manipulation and prevent fraud.

Brooks' Effective Prose Tells Story of William D. Howells

BY W. G. ROGERS

Associated Press Art Editor

(Howells: His Life and World by Van Wyck Brooks. Dutton, $5.)

William Dean Howells, Ohio's gift to Boston and New York, the Atlantic Monthly and Harper's, and American letters in general, was born into a family of Welsh background, with a father who nurtured in his boy a taste for cultural matters, the theater as well as poetry and prose.

As Brooks says, there were so few poets in Howells' America that they all knew one another and Howells moved east where he could see more of them.

On a trip to Venice he learned from Goldoni that poetry was not his forte, and back in Boston took a position on the Atlantic and became editor in 1871.

A year later he published his first fiction, "Their Wedding Journey," based broadly on his marriage to a cousin of President Hayes.

Fifteen years later he switched to Harper's, and in the next decade wrote four of his best novels: "A Modern Instance," "Indian Summer," "The Rise of Silas Lapham" and "A Hazard of New Fortunes."

This biography, in its fluid, effortless prose—could Brooks ever do a book that was not well written?—does Howells and us a great service by reminding us that he was in his day one of our most popular and influential writers.

He was a guest at the White House, President Taft went to New York for his 75th birthday dinner, he was president of the American Academy of Arts

Usually Ignored

He is now a novelist most of us are content to continue to ignore. I think it would be hard to win converts for his fiction.

It was thoroughly and earnestly American, abiding by the highest standards, worthy, sound, but without the tart to go with the sweet, just not very interesting, apt to bore.

But Howells the man and the mind belongs to our noblest tradition. An adventurous spirit, alert to new talent, broad-minded in advance of his times, brave and even foolhardy in defense of his convictions, he is, if not the best writer the best writer symbol, the pioneer and explorer.

'60 Plymouth Stronger Car

Unified Construction Said to Offer More Quiet Riding

The 1960 Plymouth, which goes on display in dealer showrooms Friday, is the strongest, quietest, fastest accelerating, and most economical operating car in Plymouth's history. It features unified body and frame structure and completely new styling.

Two new engines are added in the 1960 Plymouth line, each of uniquely different design and each developed to fulfill a specific requirement. The economy six is introduced for drivers who require maximum fuel savings. The V-8, which brings ram induction to passenger cars for the first time, is primarily a performance engine with outstanding acceleration characteristics.

List Improvements
Listed are these improvements:

1. Bodies are 100 per cent stronger in resisting twist and 40 per cent stronger in resisting bending.

2. The Plymouth is built to have longer life, with fewer repair bills. In endurance tests, 1960 models withstood night and day driving almost four times longer than preceding models before showing comparable signs of wear.

3. Two ingeniously designed engines have been added to the line, one for buyers wanting maximum economy, the other for buyers wanting maximum performance.

4. The noise level inside the car has been reduced by 50 per cent through new insulating procedures and a unique tuning process to control vibration.

5. The cars are completely restyled, inside and out, for greater beauty and for improved driver and passenger comfort.

6. New manufacturing methods make the underbodies more resistant to rust and corrosion than ever before.

7. Mainly through the design of the car, advance testing indicates that buyers may expect to travel eight to 10 miles farther on a tank of gas.

8. There are many new features, both standard and optional equipment, which are being offered in the Plymouth price class for the first time.

One of the outstanding safety devices to be developed in years is the new door lock system, which automatically locks all doors when the engine is started.

Another safety feature is the 4-light emergency warning flasher system. Whenever a car must be stopped on a highway, a flick of an instrument panel switch starts all front and rear turn indicator signals flashing continuously and simultaneously as a warning to other drivers. The system can be operated with the ignition key removed, providing continuing protection during the driver's absence.

U.S. Continues To Pretend Old Money Is in Use

Congress Fails to Act Again, Treasury Must Carry $150 Million

BY FRANK CORMIER

Washington — For the third straight year, congress has gone home without acting on a bill that would save the government $10,000 a day simply by recognizing the fact that great stacks of antique paper money have vanished from circulation.

More than $150 million in old currency has, for all practical purposes, disappeared from people's wallets. Much of this money has been lost or destroyed through fire, flood or human carelessness. Some is in the hands of collectors.

The important fact is that only a small fraction ever appears in general circulation. By law, however, the treasury must pretend that all of it is circulating freely.

This legal fiction is carried to great lengths. For instance, the treasury must make believe that people are still using about $2 million worth of Civil war "shin plasters." These were pieces of paper printed as replacements for coins in denominations ranging from 3 cents to 50 cents. Obviously, they vanished from circulation many years ago.

Administration Backing
Proposed legislation to end this game of "let's pretend" wouldn't cost anyone a penny. Neither would it affect the value of any U. S. currency, including any old bills that might reappear. Still, it has gotten nowhere despite administration backing and bipartisan sponsorship.

One administration aide said it has been bogged down by "congressional inertia."

Two types of paper money would be affected by the legislation, sponsored by Reps. Jack Westland (R-Wash) and Brent Spence (D-Ky). They are the large-size bills printed before 1929 and the gold certificates which were legally withdrawn from circulation in 1934.

It's a rare day indeed when anyone gets handed one of these bills. However, the fact they're still carried in the treasury's currency accounts means they tie up $103 million in gold, silver and other reserves.

Wouldn't Affect Value

The Westland and Spence bills would free these reserves for other use. This would mean the treasury could cut its borrowings by a like amount. At current rates, the savings on interest charges would amount to more than $10,000 a day.

The old money, under the pending bills, would be shifted from currency accounts to the noninterest bearing public debt. This technical change wouldn't affect the value of the currency. It would still be redeemed by the treasury at face value. Payment would be made out of general funds, with each redemption reducing the national debt.

In addition, the legislation would authorize the treasury to write off whatever amount of old currency it believes has been destroyed or lost forever.

During the entire history of the country, billions of dollars worth of paper money has been issued. However, only $8 million worth—a minute fraction — ever has been written off in this fashion. None has been written off since 1920.

Many Destroyed

Whenever an old bill shows up in a bank's till, the law requires that it be turned over to the treasury for redemption. However, with many issues there is a mere trickle of redemptions.

For example, treasury records show $1,142,000 worth of treasury notes of 1890 in circulation. Still, only $25,000 worth have been turned in during the last 18 years. Most of the rest presumably have been destroyed.

At the present time, about $32 billion of paper money is in the hands of the public. This figures out to about $180 for every man, woman and child in the country.

Altogether, there are 10 different currency issues backed in 10 different ways. Federal reserve notes are the most important issue and account for about $27 billion of all the paper money in circulation.

Reserve notes are issued by the federal reserve banks and must be backed by at least 25 per cent gold. Actually, the gold backing currently amounts to more than 35 per cent. The rest of the backing for the notes is chiefly in the form of government securities held by the reserve banks.

Incidentally, $37 million worth of reserve notes are in the antique category. Uncle Sam, however, can't figure out where they're hiding.

Back in the small town days a call over the back fence, and your neighbor came to help. Whether it was a problem of birth or sudden death, illness or hunger, a quarreling father or a runaway child — your neighbor would help straighten out the trouble.

Today, in our community of 150,000, the problems of our neighbors are not so simply solved. We cannot give the time to personal help, and we delegate our neighborliness to skilled personnel, better able to handle problems within 8 approved agencies of the Community Fund. No Clues in Jewel Theft

Dallas, Texas — Police were without clues today, they said, in a $39,500 gem theft blamed on publicity in a similar and still unsolved $200,000 burglary.

Police questioned servants in the home of Atty. and Mrs. Ethan B. Stroud to no avail. The $39,500 in jewels vanished while the Strouds attended a Saturday afternoon football game.

Mrs. Stroud blamed the theft on publicity last January when the home of her mother, Mrs. Bruno K. Graf, was burglarized of $200,000 in gems while the Grafs attended a social event in nearby Fort Worth. None of the Graf jewels have been recovered.

Negro Woman Has Quadruplets

Baltimore — "I'm a lucky woman. It's not every woman God blesses like this." That was the reaction of Mrs. Lorraine Graves of Annapolis after she gave birth to quadruplets Saturday at Johns Hopkins hospital.

The 30-year-old Negro woman has eight other children. Among them are two sets of twins, aged 2 and 8.

The three girls and boy were reported doing well 24 hours after the delivery, but Dr. Frank Leake, the obstetrician who delivered them, said it would take 72 hours to determine how well.

The heaviest infant weighed 4 pounds, 7 1/2 ounces, and the lightest 3 pounds, 8 ounces.

Mrs. Graves lives with her mother, Mrs. Temperance Simms. Her husband is an auto mechanic and has been living at Centerville, Va., recently.

Scientifically Speaking About Diamonds

Any diamond must be GRAD-ED in order to determine the COLOR, PERFECTION (PURITY), CUTTING and PROPORTIONING and CARAT WEIGHT. In order to determine its value in dollars, the JEWELER MUST HAVE THE PROPER SCIENTIFIC INSTRUMENTS. We have a fully equipped DIAMOND LABORATORY to EXPLAIN and SHOW you these differences in quality. Our policy is simple... BE SURE THAT OUR CUSTOMERS ARE WELL INFORMED ABOUT DIAMONDS, AND THAT HE WILL NEVER HAVE SOMEONE ON THE OUTSIDE, TELL HIM SOMETHING THAT HE SHOULD HAVE KNOWN FROM US... WHAT MAKES BUICK DRIVE SO SMOOTHLY?

Buick's Exclusive Turbine Drive is Jet-Smooth...

No Mechanical Gears Ever Shift!

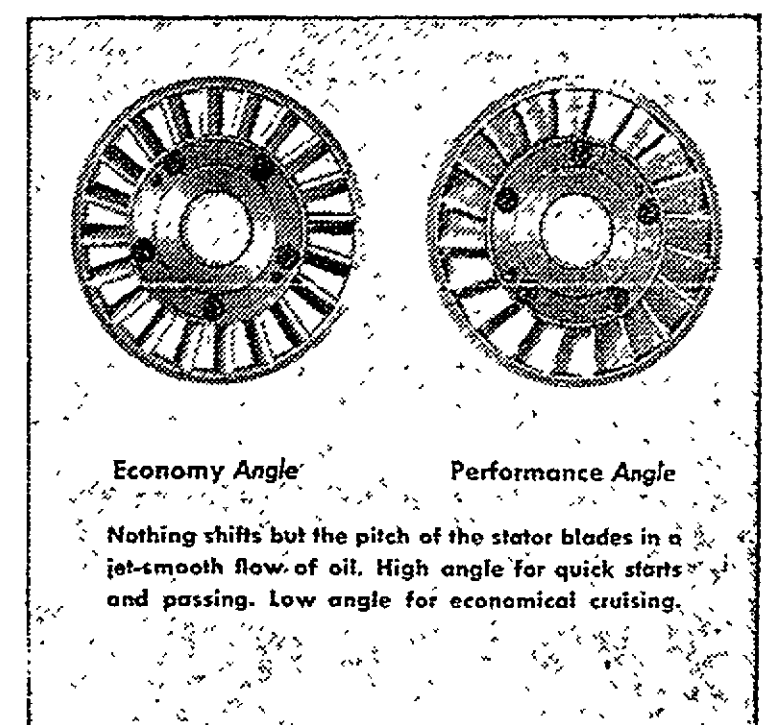

In a day when so many cars are alike, we believe you should know how basically different and how basically better a Buick is built.

For instance, no car at Buick's price, nor any car at a higher price, offers you so smooth, so dependable, so trouble-free an automatic transmission as Buick's Turbine Drive.

In ordinary automatic transmissions, gears are shifted automatically. But the shift is there! You feel it shift or hear it shift. And with each shift, the engine must adjust to a change in load, the wheels must handle a change in traction. With today's Buick in "Drive"—the flow of power from toe to wheels is jet-smooth, faster than ever and uninterrupted. The only thing that shifts is the pitch of stator blades in a swift, powerful current of oil... high angle for superb performance in starting or passing... low angle for best economy at cruising speeds.

Turbine Drive Transmission is available in every Buick. If you choose the LeSabre—the lowest-priced Buick—it is a modestly priced option. If your choice is Invicta—the high-performance Buick—or Electra—the finest Buick of all... it is yours as standard equipment. But the only sure way to get this quality Buick feature is to buy a Buick. This is the year. This is Buick at its all-time best!

Weather Vanquished, So Is Beloit; Lawrence Homecoming Game, Displays, Parade Success

Monday, October 12, 1959 Appleton Post-Crescent A14

Floats Feature Puns as Winds Buffet Entries

BY JACK HOLZHUETER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Autumn's wind Saturday may have disheveled Lawrence college's homecoming floats somewhat, but the gales served only to scatter Lawrentians' imaginations as they dreamed up pun after pun to intrigue the viewer along the route.

Seven floats, Appleton's newest and proudest fire truck, two visiting bands, four 1960 model cars and assorted queens, pep bands and marchers comprised the half-hour long College Avenue show.

But the puns captured everyone's imagination.

Picture, if you will, a gigantic orange beaver, slapping its tail on the trailer of a huge truck. "Beloit be Dammed," it said.

Picture a windmill painstakingly constructed of chicken wire and thousands of pieces of tissue paper, grinding its way down the avenue. "Win-de-Game," it said.

Picture six lovely Pi Beta Phi coeds seated before a huge, green $1 bill, throwing imitation money to eager children. "A Buc" (for Beloit) Doesn't Go Far Today," it said.

Vanquished Buccaneer

Picture a bloodthirsty Viking chopping off the head of a vanquished Buccaneer, lashed to the deck of a ship. "De Hel-met 'Em," it read.

A large camera photographed a Beloit player. "When the Vikes Click, Beloit Shutters."

Even the new cars were subject of puns. "Have Guts, will Triumph," "Win for Olds Time's Sake," "We'll Ramble to Victory," and "We can Afford to Win."

Bands Fun Free

Only the bands the fire engine escaped the jesting. Appleton High school's marching band tromped its way through a tricky rendition of "Mr. Touchdown, U. S. A.," starting with a shout and fast step that looked appropriately collegiate.

The Little Chute Drum and Bugle corps, in uniforms that just happen to match Lawrence colors, marched snappily, the wind whipping through satin uniforms with knife-like force.

groups—a polka band and a jazz combo—also entertained, although it was a tossup over who had the most fun, the musicians or their audience.

Out of it all, of course, there emerged three winners, judged by Mayor Clarence A. Mitchell, Fire Chief Paul Neumann and Gus A. Zuehlke, chamber of commerce president.

And, if you'll pardon yet another pun, congratulations on winding the game. (We caught cold, too.)

The "wind'ers" are Phi Gamma Delta and Alpha Delta Pi. "Blast Beloit," first; day.

Phi Gamma Delta Wins Twice, Puts Bucs 'In the Bag'

By Marguerite Schumann

The weather was more suitable for a winter carnival than a golden October homecoming weekend, but Lawrence college's 40th anniversary event was run off briskly in spite of the bracing weather.

For the first time in campus recollection, the undergraduates pared the list of campus decorations and numbers of parade floats, with one sorority and one fraternity working together on a single entry. This reduced the number of entries by half, but kept the hours spent in advance preparation to reasonable size.

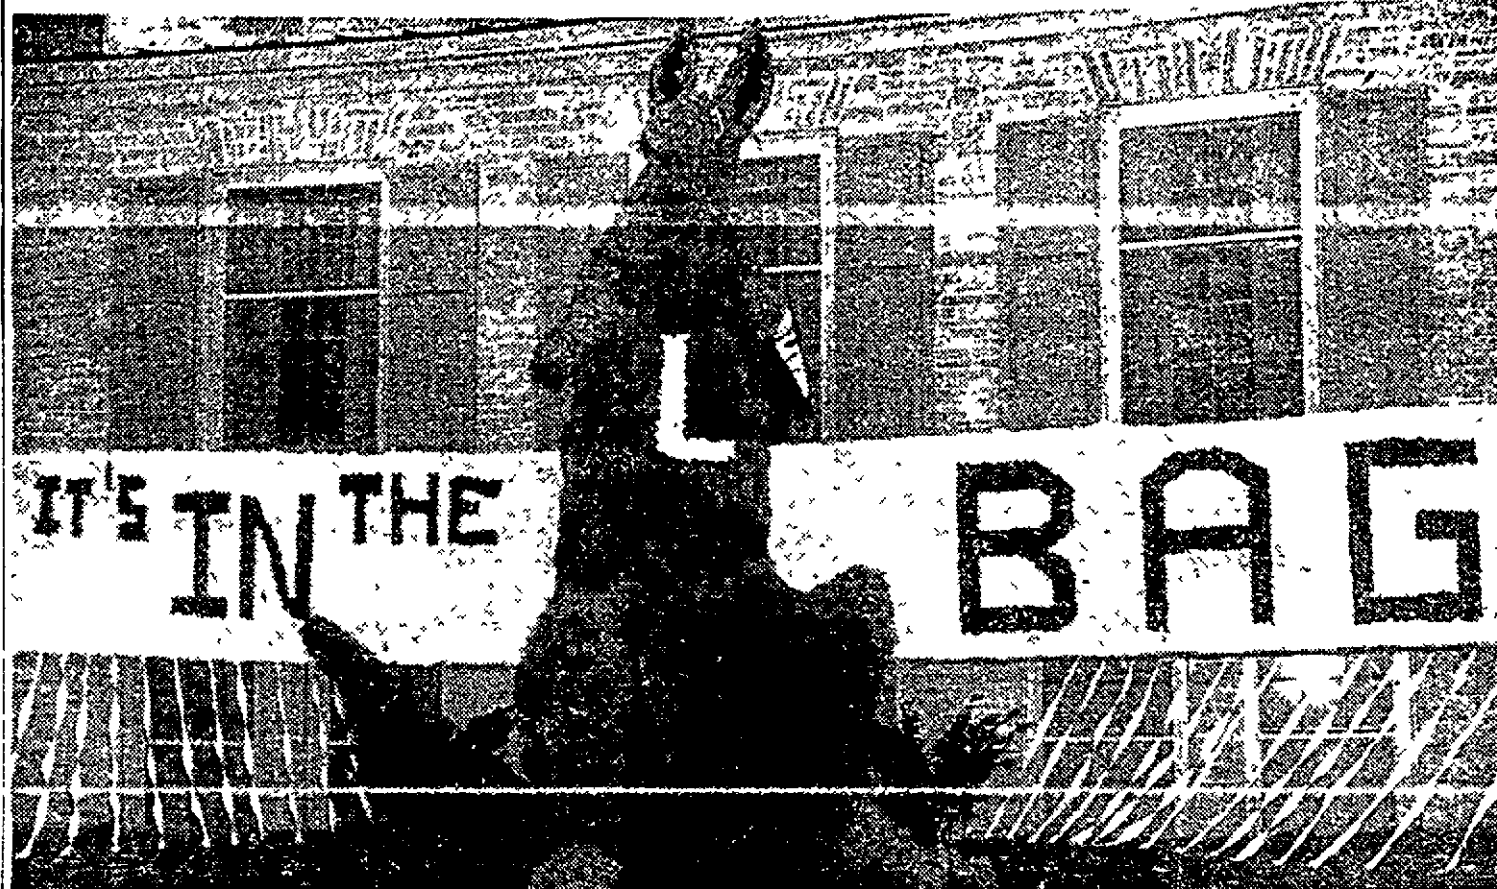

It was a large weekend for Phi Gamma Delta, Lawrence's newest fraternity, and its sorority companion Alpha Delta Pi. The groups won both the house decoration and the parade float competitions. Standing in front of the Fiji hut was a large orange kangaroo, built in three dimensions. A baby popped in and out of pouch (propelled by a pledge at the end of a rope inside the house), to illustrate the slogan "It's in the bag."

Nursery Rhyme

Second place in the house competition was won by Delta Tau Delta, assisted by Kappa Tau Delta Theta sorority. A gigantic figure of Humpty Dumpty perched atop the Delta house, lunging forward from time to time (again controlled by rope power). The jingle ran "Blue and gold upon the wall, Beloit Bucs are sure to fall. "Nursery tunes blared from a loudspeaker as campus visitors viewed the decoration.

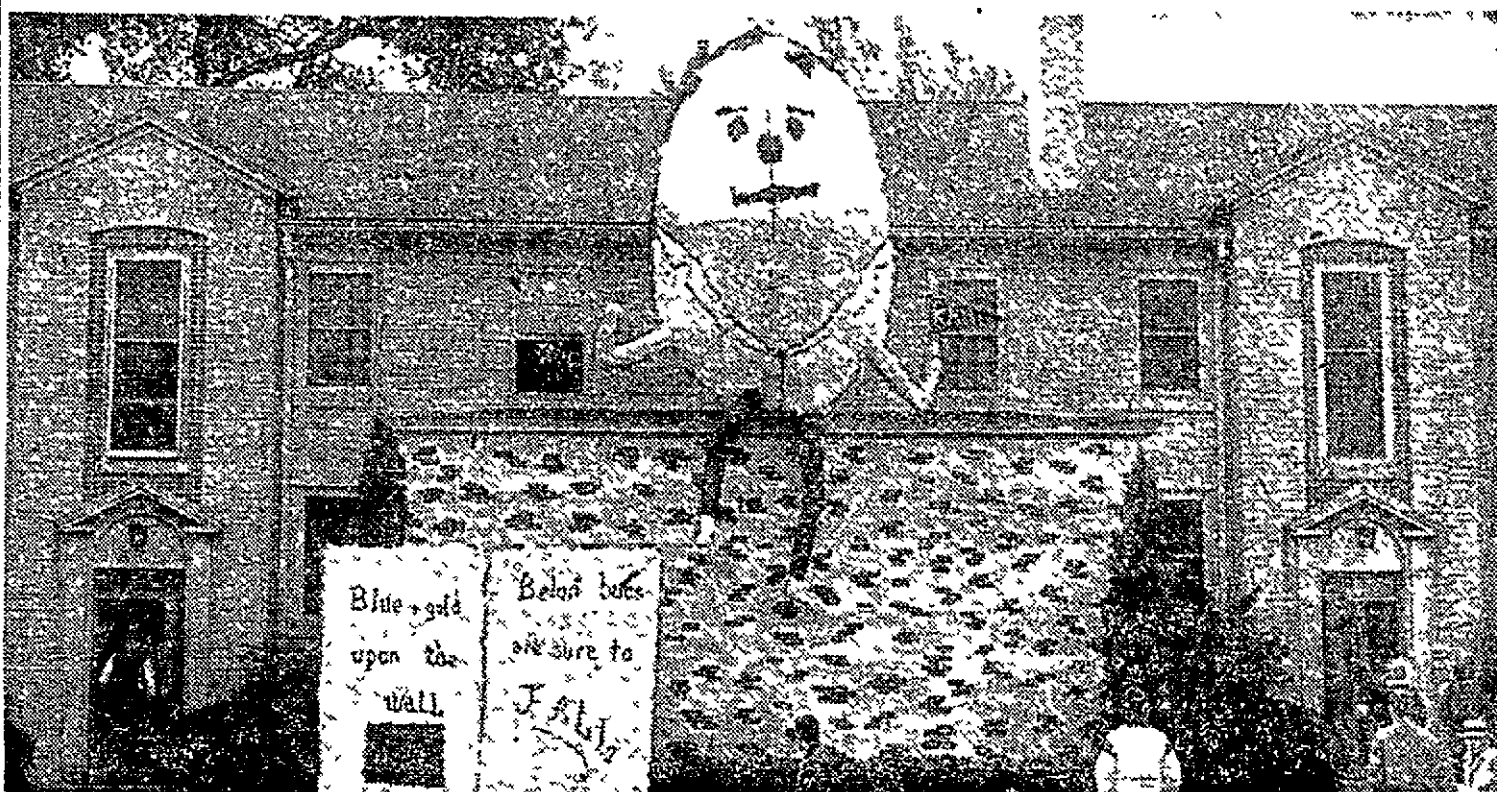

Three enormous bees of Beloit gold were manacled by an equally enormous Lawrence fly swatter, as the honorable mention work of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity and Pi Beta Phi sorority. "The Plight of the Fumble-Bees" was the principal slogan, and Rimsky-Korsakoff's famous tune of almost-the-same name was played as background music. "Bee-ware Beloit" was also displayed.

Phi Delta Theta and Kappa Delta combined forces under the slogan "The Latest—Scuttled Bucs", which depicted a

A Baby Kangaroo Popped happily in and out of his mother's pouch in front of the Phi Gamma Delta house Saturday morning (propelled by a fraternity pledge on the end of a rope) to illustrate the confident statement "It's in the bag." Alpha Delta Pi sorority assisted in constructing the house decoration, which won first place in the annual contest. The Fijis, Lawrence's newest fraternity and only two years old, won both the house and the parade contest, with the sorority as collaborator. In lower photo, Humpty Dumpty didn't take any actual fall, but he did a good bit of realistic lunging off the roof of the Delta Tau Delta house. The decoration, constructed by the fraternity and Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, won second place.

Detective Solves Burglary Day After Boy Tries It

An Appleton detective solved a Saturday night burglary Sunday with apprehension of a 16-year-old Appleton boy.

The boy admitted breaking a window with a soft drink bottle and entering the Walker and Hall Auto Repair shop, 3191 Union place, where he pried open a drawer and metal cash box, taking between $20 and $40.

The boy told the detective that he walked by the garage, then returned later after he mented by skyrockets which shot from the blazing raft.

Special guests at the homecoming game Saturday afternoon were two men from the first Lawrence football team to beat Beloit in 1902—Robert K. Wolter, Appleton, and Stephen Davis, Neenah. They watched the game from a car at the end of the field, in the company of Karl Stansbury, Appleton, whom they described as the "oldest living Lawrence football player" and Frank Young, also of Appleton. Wolter and Davis gallantly said of Young, "Whenever we needed a victory, we got Frank to referee!"

Even without the services of the obliging Mr. Young, Lawrence took its homecoming and 46th contest with Beloit.

thought about burglarizing the shop. The burglary was discovered Sunday when the garage front door was found open.

The money was found hidden between two nearby buildings. The boy has no previous record and was turned over to the police juvenile aid bureau for disposition.

Model Railroad Club Sets Annual Open House

A model circus train, complete to the last detail, will be featured at the annual 3-day open house of the Paper Valley Model Railroad club this weekend at the old Chicago and North Western depot, 723 S. Oneida street.

The club will be open from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Friday, 2 to 9:30 p.m. Saturday, and 2 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

Several new locomotives have been added, along with rearranged trackage and a remodeled roundhouse.

Built to Scale

The model railroad is one of the largest in the Midwest. Its 2,500 feet of tracks and 37 locomotives are constructed exactly to scale of one-fourth inch to one foot.

This means there are 23 miles of track in the club, with 32,500 ties, 26,000 spikes and 107 hand-built switches. There are 18 steam locomotives, 16 diesels, three gas electric, 45 passenger cars and 200 freight cars. Seven men are required to operate the trains, which run on two divisions.

The railroad club also holds open house the third Friday of every month.

In Good Taste Dinner for 2 Not Proper In This Case

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I live in a community where there are quite a few unmarried men and women in their thirties, mostly of a professional class. Not too infrequently one of these unmarried men will invite a woman friend to his apartment for dinner. He prepares the dinner, acts as host and he and his guest dine alone with no others present. In my opinion, this is socially improper for a man to entertain this way.

Answer: Even today this cannot be considered proper and most certainly risks serious criticism.

Showing Off
Dear Mrs. Post: I have a friend who is a college graduate and tries to impress everyone with her knowledge of the English language by using long words when shorter ones would do just as well. I think it is very pretentious and in bad taste.

Answer: It is true that shorter words are in best taste, especially those of Saxon origin. This does not mean, however, that one can't use long words, but merely that to reach out for a long word instead of a shorter one would seem to be showing off.

Belated Announcement

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been married secretly for over two years. For business reasons this could not be made public. I would like to announce my marriage now but do not wish to disclose the real wedding date. Will you please tell me if this would be proper?

Answer: I think you will build up a great deal of distress and confusion for yourself if you do not frankly announce the true wedding date. It does not matter how long ago or how lately it occurred. This detail should not be kept secret.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her leaflet E-16, entitled, "Table Rules of Importance," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. E.P., care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y.

Lady Mayor Wins Her Office the Hard Way

By Mildred C. Hollingsworth
Superior, Neb. — Mrs. Aarabelle P. Hanna is starting on her second term as Nebraska's only woman mayor, confident that she was the "grass roots" choice of the people. After running the city for two years, Mrs. Hanna says she "didn't care too much" when her party, the Conservatives, declined to renominate her at the biennial caucus. But her friends did care. They suggested a write-in campaign, bought space in the newspaper for advertisements and got out handbills urging voters to write in her name. Mrs. Hanna received 509 write-in votes to defeat two male candidates. "I never dreamed it would be anything like that," she says. "I was shocked." Her vote total was more than that of the combined opposition. Being mayor of this southern Nebraska town of 3,500 at a salary of $200 annually can be "tough," Mrs. Hanna says. "There are so many gripes the mayor must handle. I wish I had a complaint bureau." In more than two years as head of an all-male 6-member city council Mrs. Hanna has never had to vote to break a tie—"yet I get blamed for the decisions." Mrs. Hanna has been instrumental in revising the city ordinances for the first time in 25 years. Plans have been completed for a new sewage treatment plant. "Thirty blocks of city streets have been blacktopped and the kitchen in the city auditorium has been enlarged and equipped with electrical appliances. She is most proud, though, of changes in airport administration. A savings of $1,200 in salaries has been made, ramshackle hangars have been modernized and the airport is making money for the first time. Her next two years may be even busier. The sewage treatment plant must be completed. Street improvements are next, followed by completion of mercury lights at the approaches to the city. "And," says Mrs. Hanna, "we'll meet every emergency as it comes up."

New Sparklers
Among the loveliest of daytime accessories count the new bead chokers and bibs. Never were necklaces so perfectly designed to complement fashions. For close harmony, necklace colors follow the darkened fashion colors — the frosty grays, smoky browns, deep gem tones and "diamond" black. Sometimes, several of the shades are combined in one necklace, and the effect heightens both eye appeal and wardrobe adaptability. Besides color — coordination, necklaces offer a costume sparkle. This is due to the use of faceted crystals, shimmering pearls and smoldering jet. Strung singly or together, those beads give off darts of light and even though they are dark of color. Actually, much of their effectiveness is due to the interplay of light and dark. To keep the light burning in such a necklace is consequently a necessity. It's best done by an occasional going-over with a soapy sponge. Never soak a necklace. Just brush it over lightly with lukewarm suds, then with clear water, then blot with a towel. With that treatment, it will continue to sparkle and spark your fashions. Your Grooming Put aside your grooming doubts and worries! Send today for "Your Grooming — A to Z," a booklet that covers every step in achieving smooth looks. Shutout Bid Made to Stall Possible Slam

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
U.S. Masters Team Champion
Most experts use the opening bid of three in a suit to show a long but topless suit in an otherwise worthless hand. The idea is to interfere with the normal bidding of the opponents. West dealer. North-South vulnerable. NORTH S-A 5 H-A 10 7 3 D-K J 6 2 C-A K 8 WEST S-Q J 10 8 7 4 2 H-4 D-9 5 4 C-5 2 EAST S-9 3 H-J 8 5 D-10 8 7 C-Q J 10 9 4 SOUTH S-K 6 H-K Q 9 6 2 D-A Q 3 C-7 6 3
In this case West could be doubled and beaten four tricks. This would cost him a penalty of 700 points. In practice, this seldom happens. One of the opponents usually bids, and the opening bidder gets away with his mischief. Creates Problem The shutout bid often creates a problem that otherwise wouldn't exist. North and South could easily bid a small slam in hearts or no trump if they were allowed to bid without interference. They can actually make all 13 tricks, but the grand slam is hard to reach. After West's opening bid of three spades, North and South are likely to miss even the small slam. Some expert pairs might manage to scramble into a slam, but they would be huffing and puffing and guessing. In most cases, the hand would be played at a mere game contract. West's opening bid would save the slam bonus of 750 points by talking the opponents out of a slam. Daily Question Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S-K 6, H-K Q 9 6 2, D-A Q 3, C-7 6 3. What do you say? Answer: Bid three hearts. This promises strong trump support of four or more cards and 13 to 16 points. You have top value for your jump raise and will cooperate enthusiastically if partner tries for a slam. (Copyright 1959) is worthless; offensively, his hand should take five tricks in spades. Both of these qualities are important for players who want to make intelligent shutout bids. The hand should be worthless for defense because then the opponents almost surely have a game or slam. It would be foolish to shut the opponents out if they can't make anything. The hand should be worth five or six tricks on offense to avoid excessive risk. In this case West could be doubled and beaten four tricks. This would cost him a penalty of 700 points. In practice, this seldom happens. One of the opponents usually bids, and the opening bidder gets away with his mischief. SHE so much patience Who Is Patient?

"My husband has so much patience; he never gives up! Does this quality show in his handwriting?"
Patience is a gift you possess yourself, but not the motivating force in your husband's handwriting.
Your rounded, rather slowly-written script slants only slightly to the right. You are calm, self-possessed and tolerant. Each of your words has a beginning stroke.
The word "patience," however, ends with a long stroke, indicating persistence. This trait you do possess in common with your more vigorous partner.
Your husband's writing is made with thick, forceful pen strokes that slant far to the right. His angular letters "n" and v-shaped i-dot are evidence of a keen, analytical mind. He gets right down to business, according to the bird study. Program chair-c 11 p e d beginning strokes. man Mrs. E. A. Lutz gave then proceeds forcefully. He "combines stubborn persistence with a driving will. You are correct when you say he never gives up, but the reason is his unrelenting determination to accomplish whatever he sets out to do. He cannot be distracted from his purpose. He could be an indefatigable salesman; he also has much executive ability and can inspire others with his determination and drive. We are all inclined to interpret the actions of others according to our own temperament. That is why a handwriting analysis can be so enlightening, even when we've known the writer for many years."

Sound Sleeping, Slugging Mate Interferes With Nocturnal Rest

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: Horrifying! I finally ran across someone in your column who has the same problem I have. I refer to the wife who complained because her husband was hitting her in his sleep. May be if I explain the basis for my troubles, it will help "Black and Blue" understand hers.

My husband started poking me during the night very early in our marriage. I, too, had more than one shiner. At first I used to get mad and wake him up and ask what's the big idea. He didn't even know he had done it. He apologized and felt terrible.

Then I got to the bottom of the problem. Before we were married my husband shared a bed with his brother, Leonard. Leonard was always socking my husband and kicking him in the back. Leonard was bigger, so my husband used to wait until Leonard fell asleep before he'd clobber him.

Now, after all these years, it's hard for my husband to get these old memories out of his mind. When he hits me at night he doesn't mean anything. He just thinks he's back sleeping with Leonard.—Don't Mind

Dear Don't Mind: Thanks for your effort to help Black and Blue understand her problem.

DEAR ANN: My mother considered me the perfect child. She always knew I'd marry Prince Charming. Well, five years ago I married the only man I ever loved and the only one she hated. After our marriage she refused to see him or even speaking his name. For over a year I tried (without success) to get her to accept him. When she became furious because he came to pick me up at her home I could no longer tolerate it, so I broke with her completely.

For two years we did not see each other. Then the family doctor phoned to tell me Mother had had a heart attack and should not be left alone. My husband insisted we take her into our home.

Since she's been with us we have not had one dinner in peace. She constantly ridicules my husband, corrects his English and tells me how I disappointed her by marrying a man beneath my social level. I'm a nervous wreck and leave the dinner table in tears almost every night. What shall I do? — Rena D.

Dear Rena: Your first obligation is to your husband, and from your letter he sounds like a gem worth hanging on to.

Make plans immediately to move Mama out, and contribute to her support if necessary. If she managed two years without you I assume she has some independent income. The alternative may be a broken marriage or a monstrous doctor bill to restore your own shattered health.

DEAR ANN: Our problem may seem trivial to you, but it means a great deal to us, so please answer.

Our first child is due before long. If it's a boy we want to name him Joseph, Jr. But my husband already has a son by a previous marriage whose name is Joseph, Jr. Would it be proper to name this one Jr. too? — Infanticipating

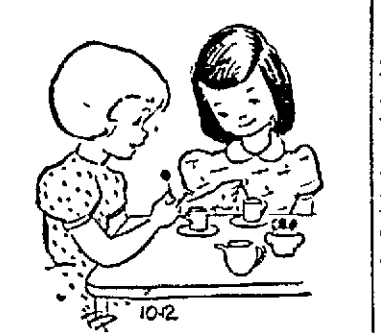

Dear Infanticipating: Sorry — only one Jr. to a papa. Your husband has used up his quota.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.) (Copyright, 1959)

Labor Party Rejects Bid To Join Liberals

London — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's high-riding conservatives.

"It is complete superficial nonsense," snapped Aneurin Bevan, labor's No. 2 man in the house of commons.

Labor party Secretary Morgan Phillips described the liberal bid as "wishful thinking."

Liberal party Leader Jo Grimond made his overture yesterday, saying: "The right wing of the labor party, and the liberals can and must combine. They might well find a meeting point."

"What is needed," said the 46-year-old Scots attorney, "is a new progressive party which, without being socialist and pledged to nationalization, can attract people of different political persuasions who want an alternative to the tory government."

Grimond's middle-of-the-road liberals more than doubled their vote in last Thursday's national election. But they still won only 5.9 per cent of the total vote, and only six seats in parliament, compared with 365 seats for the conservatives and 258 for labor. They had hoped to win 12 seats.

Young Hobby Club Players Use Soda Straws For Suction-Power Games

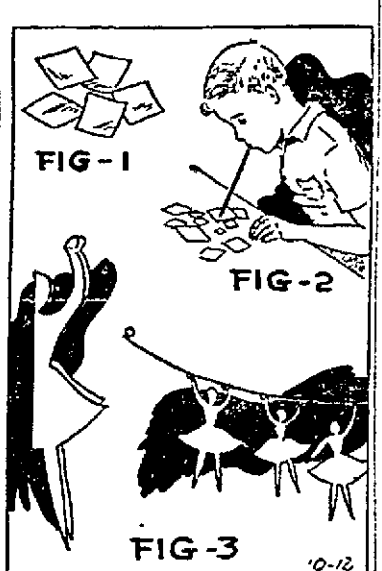

BY CAPPY DICK

Cut a sheet of paper into half-inch squares (Figure 1) and scatter them on a bare table. Give every player a soda straw to put in his mouth. At a signal each player leans over the table, puts the end of his straw against a paper and inhales to lift it on the straw (Figure 2). Still inhaling, he hurries to another table where each player has a space in which to deposit his papers.

When all the papers have been transported, the player who has carried the greatest number to the other table is the winner. If a paper is dropped to the floor, the contestant may pick it up by suction only.

From typewriting paper cut some small trapeze performers like those in Figure 3. A shows how the performer is cut from a folded paper. Do not make the figures more than two inches tall. Make a dozen or more.

arms to make clutching hands that can be hooked over a thread which will serve as a trapeze. Fasten the thread in doorway with thumbtacks. At a signal, the players must lift the dancers with their soda straws and hook them on the trapeze. The winner is the player who succeeds in hoisting the most dolls.

Some of the performers can be made so they hang by one hand only. (Copyright, 1959)

Britain Cabinet Holds Session

London — Prime Minister Macmillan's cabinet met today for the first time since the election and presumably discussed arrangements for a summit conference. The meeting lasted 45 minutes.

Crowds outside No. 10 Downing street, the prime minister's residence, cheered the cabinet ministers as they drove up to the door.

Before the meeting Macmillan had separate talks with two senior members of his government — Chancellor of the Exchequer Derick Heathcoat Amory and Home Secretary Richard A. Butler. Macmillan is expected to make some changes in his cabinet but probably not for several days.

Laborites to Boycott Civic Luncheon for Viscount Montgomery

Bolton, England — Fifty laborite members of Bolton town council announced today a mass boycott of a civic luncheon for Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery tomorrow. The reason, announced laborite Alderman James Vickers, is that they don't like being called lunatics.

Montgomery said last week that anyone who voted labor in Thursday's national election — which labor lost — was "barmy and should be locked up in a lunatic asylum." The final count showed 12,216,166 people voted labor.

Yesterday Montgomery apologized, explaining he didn't really mean what he said. The apology didn't pacify Bolton's staunch laborites.

Art Institute Questions Value Of Old Painting

Chicago — Is the painting of the stern-faced woman dressed in 16th century garb by Vecelli Titian, the great Italian artist, and worth possibly $100,000?

Or is it, as the Art Institute maintains, simply the work of one of Titian's many pupils and worth not much more than the $1,300 paid for it?

The question came up in probate court last week when heirs of the late Emil Kokesch, a merchant, asked for permission to sell the painting.

Kokesch had willed it to the Art Institute if the directors there would accept it as the work of Titian, who died in 1576 at the age of 99.

The Institute declined after appraising it as a copy, probably by a 16th century student of Titian.

But another expert disagreed. Alexander Zlatoff, Mersky, a restorer of art works, removed an overlay of paint and varnish. The original underneath, he said, definitely is by Titian and in good enough condition to hang in the world's best galleries.

balls, small toy automobiles are especially dangerous here. Nothing, but nothing, is to be parked on the stairs or the outside steps. Bikes must never be left on the steps, on the walks. They must be taken to their appointed places.

Discipline Needed Children, even very young ones, must be taught that their belongings have a place and they must be kept there. When they forget the toy, the bike, the baseball, it is to be impounded for some days. This discipline is essential.

The kitchen is a most inviting place for the little ones, the very ones most likely to get into trouble there. The gas burners, bright flames, pot handle so inviting to the grasping hand, the bowl of hot liquid, the electric machines with their buttons and cords, call to these eager explorers with inciting appeal and disastrous results.

We cannot make the world safe for the exploring children by removing the causes of their interest. We need stoves, lights, ladders, cars and trucks and the paraphernalia of active life. But we can teach children how to live safely with such things and how to use them with discretion and safety.

Angelo Patri offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning child training. If you would like to have his leaflet P-22 "Relationship to Other Children," send 10 cents in coin to him, in care of this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y.

Townsend, Fiancee Face Religious Snag

Brasschaat, Belgium — Peter Townsend says he is going to marry a Belgian heiress whose Roman Catholic religion frowns on divorce.

The handsome 44-year-old British air ace, whose romance with Princess Margaret foundered on his divorce, concedes he faces a religious problem again.

Townsend presented newsmen to his fiancee, 20-year-old Marie-Luce Jamagne, yesterday and announced: "I am not sure when exactly we will get married, but I hope it will be within the next three months or so."

Townsend was asked whether he planned to marry the dark-haired daughter of a wealthy Belgian tobacco executive in a religious ceremony. "I would rather not discuss that point," he replied. "It is too delicate a question."

and was married in the Church of England. The wife he divorced in 1952 is still living and has remarried.

A Belgian priest said today it was unlikely Townsend could marry in the Roman Catholic church.

"I can't see how a Catholic priest could perform such a marriage, because the Catholic church still considers Townsend's Protestant wedding valid, even though it was performed in another faith," the priest said. "The Catholic religion does not allow dissolution of a marriage except in very exceptional circumstances."

"Any decision would have to be made by the Vatican, but it appears that technically in the eyes of the Catholic church Townsend is still a married man and thus no Catholic wedding could be contemplated."

Space Group Says Process Too Expensive

Committee Asserts Better Management Need of Program

Washington — (AP) — The house space committee has told the defense department its "cumbersome process of decision making" is costing the taxpayers far too much money.

The committee said the system should be reorganized to provide better management where a program involves more than one service.

The criticism was made in a report over the weekend on the hearings held six weeks ago on cancellation of production contracts for two newly built boron - type fuel plants.

Specifically suggesting the pentagon establish a "firm national program" for boron-type fuel research immediately, the committee said it could be initiated by the military services and the national aeronautics and space administration.

The inquiry was conducted into the cancelling in August of a program to produce a super - powerful jet aircraft fuel. This knocked out navy and air force contracts for production of boron compounds, the basic ingredient of exotic fuels designed to give extra zip to supersonic bombers and fighters.

This resulted in the closing of two plants — one a $35 million facility operated by the Callery Chemical company at Muskogee, Okla., and the other a $45-million plant operated by Olin Mathieson corporation at Model City, N. Y., near Buffalo.

The committee agreed with the pentagon that the plants should have been closed because increased emphasis on missiles and new airplane design made the fuel unnecessary.

But the committee said the pentagon was slow in recognizing the changing requirements for high energy fuels.

"As a result the total cost of the program was substantially increased, and the impact of termination was heavier on the industries and communities concerned," the committee said, adding:

"Blame for this delay, from the time in 1958 when it was technically apparent that the two large plants were no longer needed until action was finally taken by the department of defense, rests not on the dereliction of any individual or single office, but upon the whole cumbersome process of decision - making in the department."

The program cost $250 million over seven years.

still is below five million, a total that the president has not considered an emergency in the past.

McDonald said yesterday that the union would show "that there is absolutely no need for an injunction and that if one is issued it will only serve to prolong the unnecessary conflict brought about by the greed and selfish economic amorality of the steel industry."

May Ask Extension
The board is due to file its report with the president by Friday. Taylor, however, hinted that the panel might seek an extension of the deadline if it felt time would help mediate the dispute. Under the law, the president would not be bound by the board's recommendation.

Highway Chase Ends in Death

Cotulla, Texas — (AP) — Three cars rammed together in a crash that killed five men and ended a highway chase hitting 120 m.p.h. Sunday.

Highway Patrolmen George Peterson and Ray Curtis spotted a car reported stolen at Laredo, 67 miles south on the Mexican border, and roared after it.

Just outside Cotulla, the fleeing auto swerved and smashed into one travelling the opposite direction. Peterson and Curtis piled into the wreckage.

Killed in the crash were an unidentified man at the wheel of the stolen vehicle and four occupants of the car it met.

Peterson and Curtis escaped serious injury.

Denying Education Would Keep Costs Down, Nelson Says

Green Bay — (AP) — State expenditures could be kept the same if all youngsters were denied education and all the aged were denied assistance, Gov. Gaylord Nelson said Saturday night.

Nelson told the annual convention of the Wisconsin Credit Union league that 85 percent of the increase in Wisconsin's population the past 10 years was in the relatively unproductive ages of over 65 and under 19.

Val Jacoby of Milwaukee was reelected president of the league. Other officers reelected included Arthur Gilbert, Menominee, vice president, and Fred Darling, Beloit, treasurer.

Savings, Loan Pioneer Dies In Milwaukee

Milwaukee — (AP) — A. Helmut Koepke, prominent Lutheran leader and pioneer in the savings and loan field, died Sunday following a brief illness. He was 74.

Koepke, a native of Milwaukee, was an organizer and first president of the Lutheran Men of America in Wisconsin, a former president and director of the Lutheran Home for the Aged, organizer of the Lutheran Radio Church service and a director of the American Lutheran association.

He served as a member of the State Building and Loan Advisory committee since 1937 and was named chairman in 1955.

Democrats Reactivate Committee to Study Presidential Primary

Stevens Point — (AP) — A 3-member group that will study revision of Wisconsin's presidential preference primary laws was reactivated Saturday by the Wisconsin Democratic party's state administrative committee.

The fact - finding group will consist of James Doyle, Madison; Mrs. Vel Phillips, Milwaukee, national committee woman, and David Rabinowitz, Madison, state party chairman. They will consult with the Democratic national committee.

The administrative committee also announced that a special board would be named to investigate a complaint of alleged irregularities in the election of Milan McKenzie of Presque Isle in Vilas county as precinct committeeman.

The committee approved tentative plans for the program of the party's state convention in Milwaukee Nov. 13-15.

First Native American May Attain Beatification Soon

Rome — (AP) — American Roman Catholics were heartened today by word from Pope John XXIII that Mother Elizabeth Ann Seton in a relatively short time may become the first native American to attain beatification.

In his first Mother Seton public speech in English yesterday, the Pope announced that the cause for beatification of the founder of the American Sisters of Charity of St. Joseph had passed the "ante - preparatory" stage in the Vatican's elaborate 13 or 14 step process of inquiry.

"There is reason to hope that in a relatively short time the cause may pass through the remaining stages and be brought to a happy conclusion," the pontiff said.

Beatification is bestowed by the pope and entitles the deceased recipient to public religious honor. It can be a step toward canonization. Only one U. S. citizen — Italian-born Mother Francis Xavier Cabrini of Chicago — has attained canonization, the highest church honor.

Mother Seton was born in New York Aug. 28, 1774, and died Jan. 4, 1821. She was a Catholic convert, the widow of a Protestant minister, and mother of five children. She is generally credited with es-

Establishing the Catholic parochial school system in the United States.

Her cause for beatification was proposed to Pope John last Dec. 18.

The pope spoke at the centennial celebration of the pontifical North American college on Rome's Janiculum hill, overlooking the Vatican. The service was attended by nearly a score of cardinals, including three from the United States, and nearly 100 U. S. archbishops and bishops, most of them alumni of the college.

The rector of the college, Archbishop Martin J. O'Connor, formerly of Scranton, Pa., welcomed the pope in Latin, and Pope John replied in that language. At the conclusion of his Latin address, the 77-year-old pontiff spoke English publicly for the first time.

He has studied the language only since last year, when he became pope. His speech was halting but showed considerable progress in the language and drew rousing applause.

OUTDOORS IN WISCONSIN Waterfowl Start Southward Flight

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Green Bay — By early October the Canadian prairie provinces — Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba — begin to experience their first severely cold weather. This is the signal which starts the southward movement of ducks which used the pot-holes and marshes of the prairies as their breeding grounds. Soon after we hear reports of cold weather in Canada, we can expect flights of ducks through our area.

In these marshes and sloughs of Canada, as well as those of our own northern prairie states, there may be seeds, grass roots and insects as many as 10 or 15 duck species nesting in one spot. With plenty of rainfall, these duck nurseries flourish, but when drouths occur during the breeding season for several years in a row, the pot-holes dry out, and the duck crop is poor.

That is what has happened in the last few years, and again this year. The recent drouths have not been as severe as those of the early 1930s, but it may take from five to 10 years to bring back the duck population to the high point it reached in the 1940s.

Need Aquatic Food
It's the lack of food which causes the population decrease in any species, perhaps more than any other factor. Although many duck species feed on grain, weed seeds, grass roots and insects found on land, the bulk of their food is found in or near water. Pondweeds, aquatic larvae of insects, small fish, tadpoles, mollusks, wild rice and wild celery, algae, and water beetles are some of the goods on which ducks depend.

Not all species of ducks nest in marshy places. Some like the wood duck and the goldeneye, nest in hollow trees.

Those which nest in the far north must choose a rocky hollow, or a mossy tundra in which to make their homes. Many of the pond or "puddle" ducks build their nests on dry ground, a long way off from water, as well as near water. But with the drying up of their feeding spots, they suffer too.

30 Species in State
Thirty species of ducks have been recorded for Wisconsin, a few of them occurring so rarely and so far out of their normal range that they are listed as accidentals. Among these accidentals are the masked duck and the European widgeon.

Eighteen species have been observed here in summer, but among them are some which are so rare that we can discount them as breeders. Most common of our breeding ducks are the mallard, black duck, blue-winged teal, and the pintail.

Less common are such species which nest here as the wood duck, shoveller, ring-necked duck, and goldeneye. The rare breeders include the three mergansers — American, hooded and red-breasted, lesser scaup, redhead, green-winged teal, baldpate and gadwall.

Canada is "Duck Factory" But Canada is still the main "duck factory" for North America, and what happens to ducks there affects us as far as seeing them in migration or shooting them is concerned. So, listen for reports of cold weather coming to Canada, and then watch for them to pass through, but don't expect to see too many.

Swans and geese pass through later than most of the ducks. The lesser snow goose and the blue goose are usually the first to go through, followed by the Canada goose and the whistling swan. In an average year, the first two species can be expected from the middle of October on, and the others, a few days later.

In making their flights, swans and geese fly in V formations. A few species travel in this wedge form too. Some Canada geese and some species will spend the winter in Wisconsin, wherever there is open water, but the majority will fly farther south. Inland, they are scattered along the Mississippi and its tributaries, but the largest concentrations will be along North Carolina's Atlantic coast and the Mississippi river delta.

Boy Rides Bike Across Trestle, Drowns in Wolf

13-Year-Old Loses Control of Bicycle; Found 5 Hours Later

Michael S. Kling, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kling, route 2, Shiocton, died Saturday evening when his bicycle dropped into the Wolf river near his home. His body was recovered in 50 feet of water about five hours later.

The boy was riding his bicycle across a trestle of the Green Bay and Western railroad when he apparently lost control and plunged about 15 feet into the Wolf, which is four feet above normal level.

Mrs. John Beyers, route 2, Shiocton, riding nearby in a car, saw the boy plunge into the water and called for aid.

Trestle Ties Railroad ties on the trestle are about four inches apart, Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said. The boy had five apples in his pockets and was returning to work on the Milo Singler farm, where he had been unloading corn.

Mrs. Beyers told Kemps the

Seymour Store Looted of $200

Burglars Use Chisels, Sledges to Destroy Red Owl Market Safe

Burglars took $200 from the Red Owl supermarket in Seymour sometime after 3 a.m. Sunday after destroying a safe containing the money.

The safe was rolled from a cubicle near the front of the store to a walk-in cooler in the rear. The burglars used chisels and sledge hammers to cut off bolts and loosen the sides of the safe in order to open the door, Sheriff Robert Heinritz and Lt. Jack Zuelzke said.

The store safe was seen about 3 a.m. by Seymour Patrolman Ben Jankosky and the burglary was discovered about 1 p.m. Sunday by one of the store owners. About 10 cartons of cigarettes also are thought to be missing.

Entry was gained by prying open a rear store door. There also was an attempted break-in at Puls grocery, Black Creek, over the weekend. A door was splintered and hinges loosened by a crowbar, but no entrance was made.

The K and B Auto company, Black Creek, reported its office entered and the unlocked safe opened. No money is kept in the safe and the papers stored there were not disturbed.

Buildings Erected on Former Potato Patch in Old Home Town

BY JOE DEGEORGE

Abilene, Kan., —(AP)— Eisenhower center is rising out of what once was a potato patch and cornfield in the president's old home town.

Two of its three units are open to the public. Construction of the third is about to begin.

The ground breaking ceremony for the third — the Eisenhower presidential library — will bring President Eisenhower back to Abilene Tuesday.

The $3 million library will take its place on a 13-acre site five blocks from downtown Abilene, along with the Eisenhower museum, opened in 1954, and the old home where Eisenhower and his brothers spent their boyhood.

The center will be rectangular, with the library and museum facing each other across what eventually will be a landscaped expanse of lawns and sidewalks. The home is at the western end of the tract. Five pylons, now standing in front of the museum, will be moved to the east end.

Statue of Ike
The marble and native stone library will be a 2-story building similar to the architectural style of the museum. State Architect John Brink says the library will have about 55,000 square feet of space, or about four times the size of the museum.

Greeting visitors in the marble-trimmed lobby will be a larger than life-size bronze statue of President Eisenhower.

The building will include a private office for the president, with dressing room, shower and family room. There'll be shelves for 1,000 books in the wood-paneled office.

Plans call for the federal government to place 15,000 books on the Eisenhower era in the library. There'll be room for three times that number.

The archives section will provide 17,000 square feet of storage space. The section, built to withstand earth shocks, will have automatic fire alarms with a sprinkler system and a bank vault with time locks and tear gas.

Early Completion
The library will have a small auditorium seating 154 persons. The main research room will seat 60 persons, and 10 will be able to work at the same time in the microfilm section.

Completion is expected before the end of Eisenhower's second term.

Dr. Wayne C. Grover, archivist of the United States, says President Eisenhower's papers will exceed in volume all currently available papers of the eighteenth and nineteenth century American presidents combined. He said documents to be housed here are the most important single body of historical material of the kind in the world.

Personal papers of the late Sec. of State John Foster Dulles will be deposited in the library, as will diaries and papers of military officers, and GI's who served with Eisenhower.

Funds for the project are being raised on a bi-partisan basis throughout the country.

The Eisenhower library will be only 150 miles from the Tarry S. Truman presidential library in Independence, Mo.

Commenting on this, Gov. George Docking of Kansas said:

"The Midwest will become the richest source of some of the most valuable historic material covering some 16 years of the most crucial period of American history."

This Architect's Drawing Shows how the Eisenhower center in Abilene, Kan., will look when completed. Ground-breaking for the $3 Million Eisenhower presidential library, upper right, will be held Tuesday, with President Eisenhower attending. The museum, at the left, and Eisenhower's boyhood home, lower right, are already open to the public.

New Lights to Brighten Passage Through Canal

Hendersonville, N. C. —(AP)— Regular night passage of ships through the Panama canal will start next spring with the installation of 1,300 fluorescent lighting fixtures. General Electric company's outdoor lighting plant here has been awarded a $500,000 contract to furnish the fixtures, to be installed by the Earl M. Freund company of Panama.

The three locks will be outfitted with 750 2-lamp fixtures mounted on 20-foot steel posts, hinged to allow the passage of extra wide ships. Other fixtures will be installed in the sides of the locks.

Present outdated lights at the canal, allow only emergency night traffic.

The new lights will illuminate the canal "like a main street," GE engineers said.

Dim View of Chemists Revealed in Survey

Huntsville, Ala. —(AP)— A nationwide survey to find out what people think about chemists shocked the chemists.

Eighty-three per cent of the 2,000 persons questioned said scientists make important contributions, but:

The majority believe the scientific man to be "shy, awkward, odd, socially inept, narrow in his interests and overly dedicated to his work."

The findings were reported by Dr. Wayne E. Kuhn, head of the American Institute of Chemists.

One man said he felt scientists were "queer and crazy;" another considered the typical scientist "a fool and a genius."

Kuhn said "most people of this country obviously are not well acquainted with chemists."

Green Bay — The Packers are the only unbeaten team in pro football today.

They gained that recognition by edging out San Francisco's fearsome 49ers 21 to 20 in a bitterly-fought National Football league struggle at City stadium Sunday afternoon.

Thus, the Packers became the sentimental darlings of the league by producing an early-season comeback that is virtually unparalleled for a team everybody rated last. The Packers were the worst team in pro football last year with 1-10-1. Today, they're the best with 3-0.

Sunday's battle was billed as the cinderella game of the week. That leaves the Packers as the cinderella team of the league and a high seat overlooking such powers as the Colts, Bears, Rams, Giants, Browns—the works.

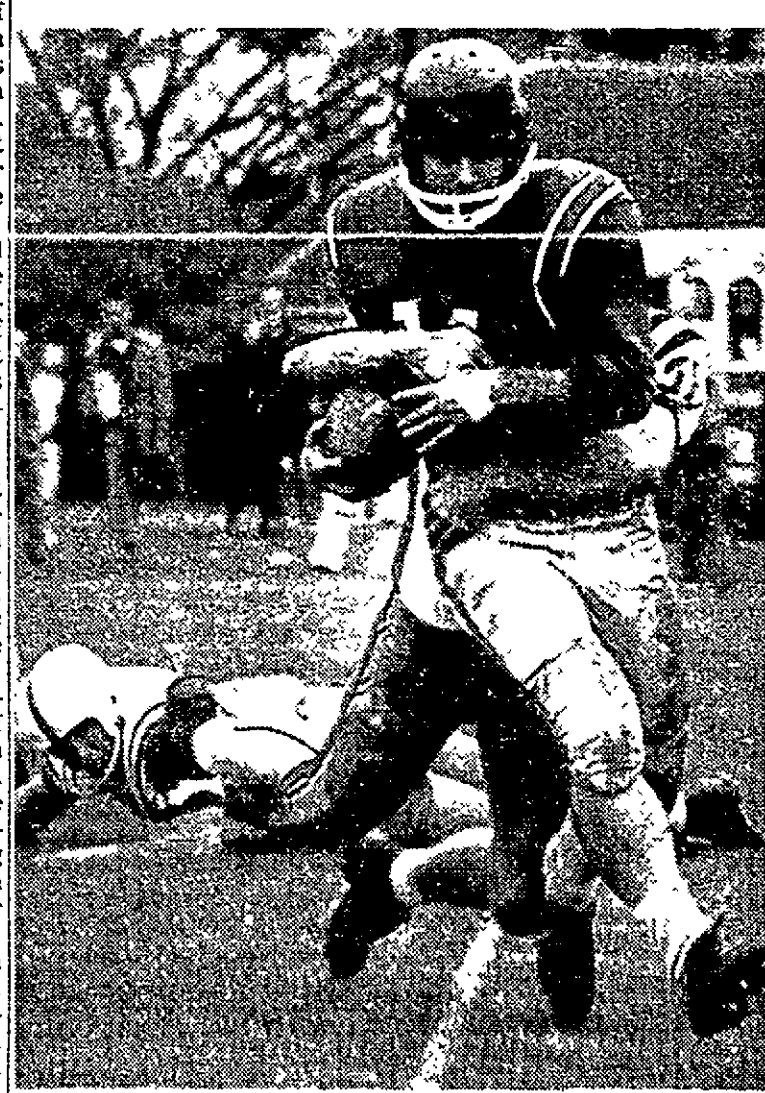

'Catch Us'

The Packers are now in that "catch us" position and getting the first crack at Green Bay will be the revitalized Rams who clipped the Bears, 28-21, in Chicago Sunday. The big game is set in Milwaukee County stadium.

The Packer-49er game—before a third straight sellout of 32,150—was more savage than the Bear and Lion battles. Both teams were keyed to the hit; the defenses were wicked; tackling and blocking were brutal, forcing seven fumbles and frequent player casualties.

The Packers almost lost in on a break in the last minute. The 49ers recovered Lew Carpenter's fumble at midfield and drove in for what could have been a game-losing field goal. But the Packers stiffened in time and Tommy Davis was short and wide on a field goal try from the 37 with 1:06 left.

Having left two years of Midwest conference football oblivion behind, Lawrence college's revitalized Vikings go into the second half of their 1959 season in sole possession of third place.

Having dispatched Beloit, 24-12, here Saturday in the first renewal since 1950 of a lively Wisconsin rivalry, the Vikes will now bid for an intrastate "slam" Saturday against Ripon, their bitterest adversary.

Alumni constituents in the homecoming crowd of 2,500 who saw the Vikes equal the school's best winning streak of the last five years came away from Whiting field convinced that the 1959 Bernie

West's Wildcats scored on the first scrimmage of play of the game, as Don Hendrickson caught a fumble in the air and ran it over. Gary Azukas scored for Central, which outplayed West most of the remainder of the game.

Packers are a 'Battling Ball Club,' Lombardi Says Proudly After Win

BY LEE REMMEL
 Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay — The Packers, a worn but happy Vince Lombardi admitted, shaded San Francisco's pass-happy 49ers with a simple formula in City stadium's latest Sunday afternoon spectacular. Loosely paraphrased, it goes: The enemy can't score when you have the ball.

He was not, he added, at all surprised at this elementary precept's singular success. "We knew we could run on them," Vince, only undefeated coach of the National Football league's only undefeated team, confided. "We did when we beat 'em in 'Frisco" (a 24-17 exhibition victory Aug. 23).

From Behind

The Packers' piece meal grab was all the more remarkable, Lombardi pointed out, "Because we were hurting for backs. Jim Taylor wasn't able to play, of course, and Don McIlhenny got hurt way back in the second quarter and wasn't able to return."

"We had all we had in there," Vince said ruefully.

Cornell, Coe Remain Tied For MC Lead

By the Associated Press

Cornell humbled Ripon, 35-8, Saturday to continue tied with unbeaten Coe for the leadership of the Midwest conference. Coe lashed Monmouth, 22-6.

Grinnell won its first victory of the season by surprising Carleton, 26-7; St. Olaf edged Knox 7-6; and Lawrence beat Beloit 24-12.

Bob Hilmer made three touchdowns for Cornell while George Phelps scored two. Dick Celichowski counted for Ripon on a plunge from the five.

Commissioner Bert Bell Dies of Heart Attack While Watching Game

Philadelphia — (U) — Commissioner Bert Bell, 65, whose boundless energy and aggressiveness lifted the National Football league to its greatest success, died Sunday of a heart attack.

Bell, who had suffered a heart attack in February, collapsed while watching the Pittsburgh Steelers-Philadelphia Eagles game in Franklin field.

He was rushed to the nearby University of Pennsylvania Hospital where Dr. Paul

Bert Bell

Schrode pronounced him dead after oxygen and adrenalin failed to revive him.

"Oh, no! oh, no!" cried his daughter, Jane, 17, when told he was dead. Also at his side were his two sons, Bert Jr., 23, and Upton, 21. Both were weeping. All had been at the game.

Married in 1934

Mrs. Bell, the former Frances Upton, a one-time musical comedy star whom he married in 194, was informed of her husband's death by Bert, Jr., and Upton. The Bells live in suburban Narberth.

Officials said Bell never regained consciousness.

Sports figures around the world paid homage to the man who took over the league in 1946 and boosted it from a muddle of confusion and red ink to a well-organized money-making organization.

Bell entered the NFL in 1933 when he and Lud Wray, a former football teammate at the University of Pennsylvania, took over the franchise of the Frankford Yellowjackets. In 1940 Bell bought half interest in the Eagles.

Bell came from a socially prominent family on Philadelphia's Main Line. He attended Episcopal and Delancy academies and Haverford Preparatory school before entering Penn in 1915.

Backfield Coach

He was an outstanding quarterback on the varsity football teams of 1916 and 1917. At the outbreak of World War I, he left school to serve with the Army in France. Upon his return to Penn in 1919 he was elected captain of the football team.

After his graduation 1920, Bell joined the Penn coaching staff headed by the late John

Schulze Goes 86

While not as big, powerful or talented as some of Lawrence's great teams of the past, the "Fifty-Niners" proved again that they have the ability to produce a big play (Jim Schulze's 86-yard touchdown run on the second-half kickoff) or a big drive (a 68-yarded in the final quarter after the Bucs had closed within six points) when needed badly.

The Ripon game marks a radical departure for the Vikes. Having gained a hoped-for but far-from-expected superiority (three wins and a 1-point loss) over second division opposition, the Vikings move into the heavyweight ranks for their final four matches.

Despite its lowly (1-3) record, Ripon — which has played only the best — will represent Lawrence's testiest assignment to date.

ly-injured Jim Ringo, the set-down by Bart Starr, the blocking up front and Hornung's boot were all perfect for the precious lead with 3:15 gone in the period.

From 'Dead'

Hornung came back from the "dead," as it were. "Golden Boy" was out cold and kicking and seemingly ready for a ride in a waiting stretch on the third play of the winning-TD drive. But, presto, he revived and stayed in the game.

Paul was a wonderful workhorse. With Jim Taylor missing the game, Hornung carried 28 times for 138 yards for an average of 4.9, made an unbelievable catch of an 8-yard pass from McHan on the last play of the first quarter, and then on the first play of the second period scampered eight yards for a touchdown. He finished with nine points.

Carpenter, who fumbled twice, shifted to fullback from his right halfback spot and lugged 17 times for 62 yards. He blocked beautifully for McHan's passing and on runs.

The Packers ripped off 284 yards rushing — their fastest soil total of the season but settled for 94 yards in McHan passing, including six completions in 14 tries. Two of his tosses went for touchdowns—the first a 30-yarder to Max McGee in the first period and the second to Knafele.

Big Edge

The Bays outyarded the visitors 378 to 272 and piled up 25 first downs compared to the 49ers' 13. The 49ers made 125 of their aerial yards in the last half, although 75 of it came on the Owens TD.

The Packers were handicapped with injuries. Don McIlhenny was hurt in the second quarter and when Hornung was injured the Bays almost ran out of backs. Bobby Dillon was shaken up and missed the third quarter. Johnny Symank filling in, Ringo hurt his ankle and missed some action in favor of Bob Skoronski. Jim Temp worked in injured Nate Borden's position and made three tackles and three key rushes.

The Packers received the opening kickoff and zipped 80 yards in eight plays for a 7-0 lead. Eight players later McGee made a stretching catch of McHan's toss in the end zone for the TD. Hornung converted for 7-0.

Zoom Back

The 49ers zoomed right back to score a field goal, Davis hitting from 28 yards out. It was 7-3 at 9:13.

Now it was the Packers' turn. Hornung figured in six of the last eight plays, running wide to his right for the TD behind good blocks by Knafele and Jerry Kramer. Hornung made the extra point but the Bays were holding so he converted from 24-yards out for 14-3 at :05 of the second period.

Bettis, Forester and Currie started giving Tittle fits with their rushing. Davis hit a field goal from the 32 for a 14-6 score with 8:05 to go in the half.

In the third quarter McHan's pass was intercepted by Baker on the Packer 42 and returned to the 12. On second down Tittle lined a touchdown throw to Wilson in the end zone and Davis converted for 14-13. After Hornung's field goal try from the 47 was wide the 49ers struck again. With second and five, Owens worked free on the 49er 47, took Tittle's pass, in shock off Jesse Whitenton on the Packer 20 and ran home to complete a 75-yard TD play. Davis' kick made it 20-14 at 10:26.

The 49ers ripped off three first downs and it appeared that the Packers were in trouble until Hanner grabbed Perry's fumbled lateral to Tittle. That set off the big Knafele TD.

Later, Carpenter moved 11 to the 49er 46 with 4:52 left. Carpenter, however, fumbled on the next play and Henke recovered.

Tittle's roll-out pass to Conner for 11, Smith's 3-yard run, a Tittle pass to Wilson for nine set the ball on the Packer 30 with 2 minutes left. The 49ers gained nothing in three tries and Davis was forced to kick from a far piece — 37 yards.

The rest is in the history

Rams Upset Bears, 28-21

Matson Gains 199 Yards, Sets Up 3 Wade Touchdown Passes; Colts Decision Lions, 31-24

By the Associated Press

The Green Bay Packers—21-20 victors over San Francisco Sunday—suddenly are the only stable element in the upset-prone National Football league.

The Packers (3-0) are the loop's only unbeaten club.

The Packers next meet the Los Angeles Rams, who won their first game in convincing fashion by upsetting Chicago's Bears, 28-21.

In other games, defending champion Baltimore rallied to defeat Detroit 31-24, New York edged Cleveland, 10-6, Washington upended Chicago's Cardinals, 23-14, and Philadelphia turned back Pittsburgh, 28-24.

Decision Factor

Ollie Matson, acquired by the Rams for nine players, was the decisive factor as Los Angeles, now (1-2), came from behind against the Bears (1-2). Matson ground out 199 yards in 31 carries and set up three touchdown strikes by quarterback Billy Wade. Joe Marconi scored the winning TD in the final period, plunging one yard to cap a 63-yard drive.

Johnny Unitas bailed the Colts (2-1) out of danger. He threw three touchdown passes, including a 54-yarder to Ray Berry that put Baltimore out front in the last quarter. It was the twenty-eighth consecutive league game in which Unitas has thrown at least one scoring aerial. A trio of TD flips by Tobin Rote to Howard Cassady kept the Lions (0-3) in contention.

Don Chandler's booming punts kept the Browns (1-2) deep in their own territory most of the day and the Giants (2-1) won despite gaining only 250 yards to Cleveland's 343. Charlie Conerly engineered the deciding thrust in the second period, scoring himself on a 1-foot plunge at the end of an 80-yard drive.

With Ralph Guglielmi moving in for starting quarterback Eddie LeBaron, the Redskins (2-1) had little trouble with the fumbling Cardinals (1-2). Guglielmi hit on seven of nine tosses and connected for one touchdown. Quarterback King Hill scored twice for Chicago.

Defensive back Jimmy Carr starred for the Eagles (2-1). He intercepted two passes and deflected a TD-bound Pittsburgh aerial late in the game. Carr's final theft led to the winning tally, an 18-yard pitch from Norm Van Brocklin to Tommy McDonald. Bobby Layne scored once, threw for two tallies, kicked a field goal and three extra points for the Steelers (1-2).

has "arrived" as an offensive standout after a slow sophomore season, captured the MC scoring lead with three touchdowns. Besides his electrifying run of 86 yards, Schulze scored from the 3 and the 5 to boost his season's total to 39 points.

Scovel Scores

Fullback Gary Scovel registered the first Vike TD—from the 1. For Beloit, Bob Cizek and Dave Warner scored on short runs.

In the point-after-touchdown department, mass futility reigned. The Vikes missed four cracks at 2-pointers, while Beloit missed one of each type of option.

Lawrence rumbled 56 yards to paydirt after the game-opening kickoff—in a manner that falsely suggested an easy afternoon. The big gainers in the 9-play sequence were a 19-yard gallop by Scovel (when he caromed off a stone-wall line and turned the play into an end sweep) and a 10-yard ramble by Schulze behind cracking — good interference, especially by Gil Sutherland.

Switching from the "T" to the single wing, the Vikes sent Scovel over from the 1.

Thereafter, however, Beloit lived up to expectations and was anything but a push-over. The Bucs squared the count late in the opening quarter after recovering a Mike Uwellung fumble on the Vike 20. Six plays later, Bob Cizek swept over from the 2.

Dave Hackworthy boomed through to spoil Dick Van Scotter's PAT run.

In the fading minutes of the first half, the Vikes proved that they, too, could capitalize on a break. Scovel, an exceptionally — good defender, blocker and ball-carrier Saturday, came up with the game's only interception. Scovel pilfered a deflected pass from Jim Kuplic at the Beloit 40 and returned to the 37.

Schulze's 16-yard cut-back was the most prolific gain in the ensuing 5-play TD sortie. From the 3, Schulze took a hand-off from Bob Landis and cruised over the goal — line through a gigantic off-tackle hole to put Lawrence ahead for keeps.

Non-Stop Flight

The game's most exciting play was unfurled in the first 18 seconds of the second half. Schulze gathered in the Beloit kickoff on his 14 and took off on a flight that was to prove non-stop. After good blocking had cleared the way early, the former all-state prepster thwarted several would-be tacklers, himself by proving as slippery to handle as a wet bar of soap. For the final 5 yards, Schulze "flooded" the accelerator, and his speed along the north sidelines left the pursuers well behind.

Beloit took advantage of a short (25-yard) punt to get back into the game early in

Blackbourn Hails Indiana Blocking

Hall Passes for 273 Yards in 33-13 Setback at Indiana

Bloomington, Ind.—The Indiana's single wing attack shattered Marquette's defense—good for a 33-13 victory that left the Warriors with their fourth straight loss of the season.

"The Hoosiers had the best blocking of any team we've met," Marquette Coach "Liz" Blackbourn said following Saturday's defeat. "They also had enough fast, shifty backs to take advantage of it."

Pete Hall tried to carry the load for the Warriors but most of the time there were too many Indiana linemen in his backfield. His passes set up one Marquette touchdown and scored the other. But an interception also put Marquette in a hole from where they never could climb out.

The single wing attack was especially effective against Marquette on the outside, with tailbacks John Henry Jackson and Ted Smith and wingman Ron McCauley doing most of the damage in throwing Marquette for loss after loss.

Needed Breaks

"We could have been very much in the game," Blackbourn said, "with just an ordinary run of breaks. Penalties hurt us on some good gainers, two fumbles stopped us when we were rolling, plus the interception runback."

The interception came at a time when it looked like Marquette might go all the way to cap a 76-yard drive. The 72-yard runback broke up a scoreless game.

Hall's passing ability, connecting on 15 of 23, put 273 yards in the statistics column for the Warriors.

"Pete was at his best of the season," Blackbourn said. "We got some real fine receiving from Tim Zhukie and George Andrie. Even the running game which wound up with a net of 25 yards wasn't bad."

Blackbourn also said that

Xavier Thumps Wayland JVs

Hawks' 43 to 0 Grid Victory Is Third Straight

The new Xavier Catholic High school, of Appleton, seeks its fifth victory in six games, and its fourth straight win at 8 p. m. Thursday against Oshkosh Lourdes at Oshkosh.

The Hawks latest triumph was a 43-0 smashing of the Wayland academy junior varsity at Wayland Saturday morning. Freshmen played half the game for Xavier.

Scoring touchdowns for the winners were: Dick Eisner, Pete Werner, "Chuck" Lucke and Dick Wiesner. Joe Nussbaum, Joe Ebben and Tom Peeters all counted extra points.

The Xavier frosh tallied a third quarter safety. Quarterback Paul Zeegers completed five of seven passes for the winners while Wiesner connected on two of four. Xavier gained 294 yards from scrimmage to 82 by Wayland.

he felt the team didn't look too bad despite the 33-15 score.

"We've just got to start winning," he said. "We move the ball well but a backfire here and there stops us. We are out there to win and not hold the score down so we take chances."

Battered Badgers Look to Iowa With Blackened Eyes

'We'll Have to Pick Ourselves Up,' Says Bruhn After 21-0 Loss

Madison — A humbled and battered Wisconsin football team today began picking up the pieces, with a blackened eye toward Saturday's game here with powerful Iowa.

The Badgers were beaten, 21-0, at Purdue last Saturday, being outplayed on the ground and in the air, in good weather and foul.

4 Badgers Hurt

Purdue capitalized on Wisconsin errors, striking for two touchdowns in the first nine minutes on a dry field, holding the Badgers in firm control during a torrential downpour and march-place," was delighted with Paul Hornung's dazzling performance. "He's a very fine football player," Lombardi declared.

He also expressed concern over the injury that felled Hornung twice in the second half. "He's hurt pretty bad," Vince revealed. "It's not serious but it looks like a real bad neck and shoulder. He got it the first time he was hurt and got it in the same spot again late in the fourth quarter."

What if he should be sidelined for next Sunday's Milwaukee date with the Los Angeles Rams?

Let's Not Ask

"Let's not ask that question," he replied with the ghost of a smile, then quickly added, with a show of spirit, "if Hornung can't play, we'll have to find somebody else on the squad."

In this connection, he said it is doubtful if Taylor will be available for the Ram match. "He has a real serious burn," Vince reported.

"But Bordon (Nate) should be ready next week. Jim Ringo, of course, played the full game today, hobbling."

Along with Hornung's performance, he noted that quarterback Lamar McHan "came through in the clutch. In fact, he was every bit as good as he was in the Bear and Lion games, if not better. Those three catches Kneale made in that fourth quarter touchdown drive were big plays, too."

Defensively, he said, "I think again that Dan Currie and Tom Bettis played very fine games."

Lombardi also paid sincere tribute to the enemy. "That's a fine offensive football team. There aren't many better than that one."

Turning to the statistics, he noted, "we gained 284 yards rushing!" That's pretty good," Vince added with a smile, running down the individual figures, "138 in 28 for Hornung, Carpenter 62 in 17, McIlhenny 39 in 4, and look here, McHan had 45 yards."

Somebody asked "What about next week?"

"Let next week take care of itself," Vince grinned.

Clints, Rockets Play 7-7 Tie

Pete Millar broke loose to score from the 13 on the third. He seemed stopped once but managed to squirm free and went the last five yards untouched. Mitch Miller completed the scoring by kicking his seventh straight extra point of the year.

Truckers Threaten

The Truckers were kept in the hole most of the first half by four 15-yard penalties and didn't threaten seriously until the last quarter.

They took a punt on their own 19 on the first play of the final segment and didn't give up the ball until they got to the Neenah 15. In their final crack at the line, they fell a yard short of a first down.

After three plays, Neenah had to punt and Clintonville took over on its 45. The Truckers got 15 yards on a Rocket pass interference on the first play and two completions in three throws carried the ball to the 14.

Westphal Kicks Point

Archie Gough made a first down on the 11 and with just 25 seconds on the clock quarterback Bill Fritsch passed to Dick Bennett, all alone in the end zone. Leon Westphal booted the tying point squarely through the uprights.

Neenah returned the kickoff to its 33 and with about 15 seconds left tried one long desperation pass which was picked off by Westphal on the Truck 40 and returned five yards.

Rushing Edge

Statistically, the Truckers held the upper hand, getting 133 yards rushing to 89 and 97 yards passing to none for Neenah.

The Neenah first half total took a big dip when thrown for two straight losses totalling 32 yards in the second quarter. Neenah had 49 net yards in the first half and 40 in the second. It only had the ball for four plays and two punts in the last quarter.

The Truckers garnered 47 yards rushing in the first half and 86 in the second.

One of the features of the game was the fine defensive end play of Neenah's Gary Bayer and Harry Plum of the Truckers.

Scoring by quarters:

Neenah	7	0	0	0-7
Clintonville	0	0	0	7-7

Touchdowns: Neenah, Miller; Clintonville, Bennett; Conversions: Neenah, M. Miller (placement); Clintonville, Westphal (placement).

Purdue, NU Try Luck on Road This Week

Contenders Win Vital Games Behind Reserve QBs

By The Associated Press

Purdue and Northwestern, two contenders for the Big Ten football title who had to call on reserve quarterbacks for victories Saturday, try their luck on the road this week.

Purdue swamped Wisconsin, 21-0, when Bernie Allen, filling in for injured Ross Fichtner, tossed three touchdown passes.

Bob Eickhoff, a fourth-string sophomore quarterback, picked Northwestern's No. 2-ranked Wildcats up late in the game and led them to a 6-0 victory over surprisingly rugged Minnesota with a 7-yard touchdown pass in the final quarter.

A sophomore combination helped Illinois gain a 9-0 victory over Ohio State while Iowa swamped Michigan State, 37-8. In non-conference games Indiana beat Marquette, 33-13, and Michigan whipped Oregon State, 18-7. Notre Dame whacked California 28-6.

Four on Tap

Four conference games are on tap this week with Northwestern at Michigan, Purdue at Ohio State, Minnesota at Illinois and Iowa at Wisconsin in a game which could eliminate either the defending champion Hawkeyes or the hopeful Badgers from Wisconsin.

Iowa nudged back into the title picture by trouncing Michigan State on the passing of Olen Treadway and the pass-receiving of Don Norton.

Illinois connected on a pass from Mel Meyers to Johnny Counts which covered 73 yards to clip Ohio State and prove the Illini victory over Army was no fluke.

Northwestern was throttled by the heavier Minnesota team but Eickhoff came off the bench in the third quarter and engineered the big drive.

Except for a season opening scoreless tie against UCLA, Purdue appears the most formidable team in the Big Ten. The Boilermakers do not play Northwestern. But they meet rugged Iowa Oct. 24 and Northwestern already has slipped by the Hawkeyes.

Canadiens Bow to Bruins, 8-4

By The Associated Press

Now that the Detroit Red Wings and the Boston Bruins have shown that the Montreal Canadiens are not awesome characters ready to devour their opponents in every game, there is some hope in the camps of five National Hockey league teams.

Settle for Tie

The Canadiens, after opening the campaign at home with a 4-1 victory over Boston, were forced to settle for a 1-1 tie with Detroit Saturday and Sunday night bowed to the Bruins, 8-4, at Boston.

Meantime, the Toronto Maple Leafs swung into action with two victories. They beat the Black Hawks, 6-3, in Toronto Saturday and repeated, 3-1, at Chicago Sunday night. New York's Rangers dropped their third straight, losing to

Pool Committee To Make Report At Little Chute

Indications are That Village Will Have to Wait for Swimming Area

Little Chute — All indications have it that this village will have to wait until some time in the future for its own swimming pool.

The village board's study committee which has been checking on the pool situation for the last year is ready to report to a citizen's group organized for the purpose of getting preliminaries started for a pool.

Bonded to Hilt

However because the village is nearly bonded to the hilt now and faces the prospect of some additional heavy expenditures, it appears the pool will have to wait.

Trustee Clarence Lamers said, "We are bonded too far now to permit any additional bonding for a pool. The only way would be to raise all the necessary money out of one year's budget and that means raising the taxes."

President Paul Kostka said it may be a good idea to "start putting something aside for the future now," and consider a long range pool plan.

State Changes Stop Signs on Old Hy. 41

Winneconne Avenue, Main Street, Winchester Road Made Arteries

Neenah — With the opening of the new Highway 41 expressway around the city of Neenah, several stop signs along the old Highway 41, now known as Green Bay road, have been changed.

Traffic going north and south on Green Bay road will have to stop for the Winneconne avenue intersection of Highway 114, at the Main street intersection and at the Winchester road intersection, which is Highway 150.

State highway department crews made these changes of the stop signs late last week and also have erected advance warning signs calling attention to the new arterial stop signs.

Previously the Winneconne avenue, Main street and Winchester road traffic had to stop for the old Highway 41.

Neenah police had advised motorists to use caution in approaching these intersections because, from force of habit, many drivers who are not used to stopping at those intersections may go through the arterial without seeing the new signs.

Select Jury for Oshkosh Trial of Dominic Fognini

Oshkosh — Selection of a jury in the trial of Dominic Fognini, 42, no address, charged with theft of eight suits from an Oshkosh clothing store on May 28, was completed in circuit court this morning. The case is being heard by Judge Russell E. Hanson of Fond du Lac.

A jury of four women and eight men heard Dist. Atty. Jack Steinhilber's opening statement before recess was called. He said the evidence would satisfy the jury that Fognini was guilty of the charge.

Fognini's attorney, Mark Catlin, Jr., just before the noon recess, raised the question as to whether Judge Hanson could pass on his motion admitting the eight suits as evidence.

A diagram of the Oshkosh store from where the suits allegedly were taken, was stipulated as evidence by Steinhilber. The jury was dismissed until 1:30 this afternoon.

Agency Moves

Neenah — The Louis H. Haase real estate agency has moved into new offices in the Twin City Clinic and Professional building at 211 N. Commercial street.

K-C Named Defendant In Libel Suit

Neenah — Kimberly-Clark corporation, one of the sponsors of Playhouse 90 television program last season, is among nine firms being sued for a total of $10 million by Titus Haffa, a Chicago industrialist.

Haffa contends that the play "Seven Against the Wall" shown Dec. 11, 1958, and repeated July 9, libeled him and defamed his character.

The play about the St. Valentine's day massacre in Chicago included a shot of a newspaper headline about Haffa being sentenced to two years in prison. Haffa contends that incident was not related to the events of the play.

Haffa, president and board chairman of Webcor, Inc., and associated with the Dornier corporation, served 17 months in federal prison for a prohibition act violation in 1930-31.

Named with Kimberly-Clark corporation in the suit are Allstate Insurance, American Gas Association, Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company of Chicago, North Shore Gas company and Illinois Gas company, Columbia broad-casting system, Renault, Inc. and R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, the latter two being for only the July 9 repeat showing.

Haffa said he will contribute to charitable organizations and for scientific research any money he might receive from the suit.

Nov. 25 Opening Seen For Jandrey Addition

Remodeling of Former Sporting Goods Store Allows for Expansion

Neenah — A Thanksgiving time opening of the expanded Jandrey company department store was announced today by store officials. The former Winnebago Sporting Goods store is being remodeled to permit the expansion of several departments now crowded for space.

The remodeling is expected to be completed by mid-November with a probable opening of the new section on the east side of the department store about Nov. 25. Moving into the new unit will be the men's wear, boy's wear, prep school age section, shoe department and luggage department. This move will permit expansion of the present cosmetic department and the new sub-teen section as well as giving more store space.

The first floor of the addition will provide 3,600 square feet of space for the expansion and the basement will be used for storage. The present store space is 26,400 square feet for merchandising and storage.

Archways into Store Two large archways will lead from the present store into the new addition and there will be entrance also from W. Wisconsin avenue. New furniture is being installed as well as air conditioning, a new vinyl tile floor and a modern hanging ceiling with indirect lighting.

The balcony at the rear of the addition will be used for the store's advertising department. Emphasis in the new carrying a loaded gun in a running, motor driven boat. He pleaded guilty of all counts Saturday before Justice George Whalen.

He had been an alderman for 31 years, a police and fire commission member and a former board of education member. He was a lifelong resident of Oshkosh.

Neuritis Form of Rheumatism Due to Nerve Pressure

By UPTON X. FURMAN
Chiropractor, Neenah

Pains and aches shooting throughout the arms and legs and over the shoulder commonly felt this time of year is a form of neuritis and is often called rheumatic neuritis.

The science of Chiropractic contends that rheumatic neuritis is caused by nerve pressure. A recent book entitled "Fractures And Other Bone and Joint Injuries", written by R. Watson-Jones, again verifies the Chiropractic principle. The following are a few sentences from the book. "Joint subluxation (displacement) is more serious than is generally recognized. The displacement may follow a severe injury such as a fall on the head or a dive in shallow water. In other instances the accident appears unimportant. The resulting nerve root irritation and compression then led to persistent disabling neuritis in one or both upper limbs."

A chiropractor locates and removes the nerve irritation. When the cause of neuritis is removed the nerve subsequently heals and the pain subsides.

Whitcomb Clouts Big 680 Count in Menasha League

Rachel Pues' 227 Loner Tops Women Keglers in Fish Loop

Menasha — Bob Whitcomb jolted a king-sized 680 series, the second best effort on Menasha lanes this year, to pace the Atlantic Fish Mixed Couples Bowling league Sunday night at Mid-Town.

Earl Mentzel Fires 620 Set in Neenah Play

Eunice Bondow's 530 Tops Women In Tractor Loop

Neenah — Earl Mentzel fired a 620 series to lead the Doghouse Mixed Couples Bowling league at Lakeroad Sunday afternoon.

The Dachshunds lead with a 7-2 record, topping a pair of runnersup by one game.

Eunice Bondow of the McCormick team came up with a 198 game and 530 series in the Tractor Mixed Couples Bowling league Sunday night at Lakeroad Lanes.

Men's honors went to Bill Bondow with his 561 three-some.

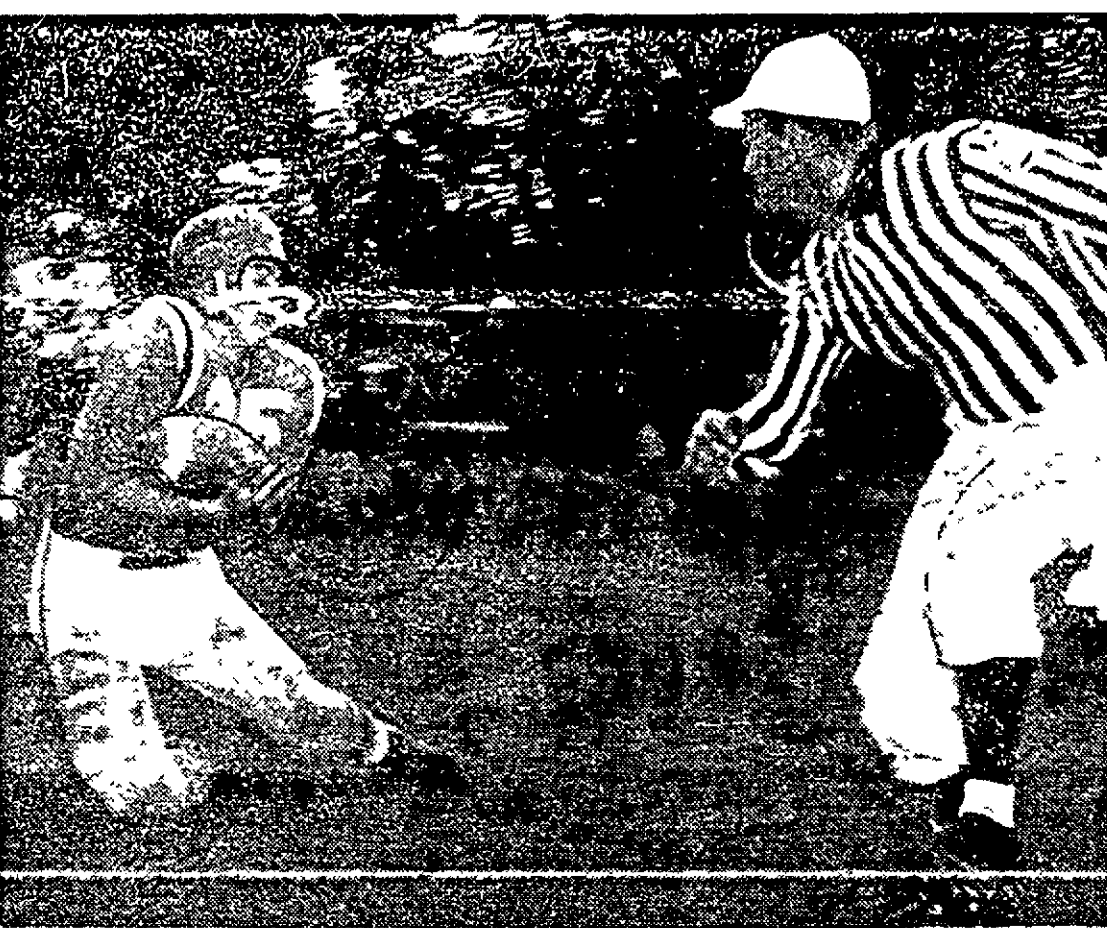

Erv Kuchenbecker tallied a 234 game and 572 series in the Trinity Lutheran Men's club circuit Saturday night at Lakeroad. Kuch's and Ginn's won three games.

Edith Harrington's 190 game was the only honor count in the Nightclubbers Mixed league Sunday night at Lakeroad.

Ruby Tuchscherer rolled a 191 singleton in the Lakes Mixed league Sunday night at the Neenah lanes. The Pickarel team leads with a 7-2 record.

Pro Hockey By The Associated Press Sunday's Results Boston 8, Montreal 4. Toronto 3, Chicago 1. Detroit 4, New York 2.

Saturday's Results Boston 6, New York 4. Montreal 1, Detroit 1. Toronto 6, Chicago 3.

Down Goes Jim Petcka, Clintonville halfback, without being touched after grabbing a pass in the first half of Saturday's Neenah-Clintonville contest. The official is unidentified. The clubs tied 7-7 to remain tied for the Mid-Eastern conference lead.

Football Roundup 'Play for a Tie,' Coach Orders Club In Waning Seconds of Neenah Tilt

Neenah — "Play for a tie," Clintonville Coach Tony Ellis emphatically told Captain Archie Gough when the latter inquired about the strategy for the last couple seconds of Saturday's game here.

The Truckers had taken the ball on the 45 after a pass interception with the score tied 7-7 and less than five seconds left to play. Gough wanted to know if Clintonville should shoot for the "long one." The Clints had tied the score with less than 30 seconds remaining.

The 7-7 deadlock was the third in the last five years involving the two clubs and the second in as many seasons. The situation was the same last year with Clintonville holding the ball during the last series of plays to be content with a tie rather than going for the long game.

The tie preserved the Rockets' record of not having been beaten at home since the final game of the 1953 season when Menasha edged them 16-14. Other blemishes on the home record included a 13-13 tie with Kimberly in 1954 and the 7-7 knot with the Truckers in 1955.

The Menasha win over Two Rivers, St. Mary's loss to Clintonville, and the Neenah tie gives the Twin City varsity squads an overall 7-5-1 record with the season half completed. A year ago, the trio finished the entire campaign with only two losses with 19 wins and three deadlocks.

Menasha's 27 points against Two Rivers was its biggest scoring output since it beat Shawano 28-14 in 1956. Tops for last year's conference winning Jay club was 25 against New London.

When St. Mary bowed to Springs Sunday it marked the first time since 1951 that it was beaten by a Fox Valley Catholic conference team other than St. Norbert or St. John. And it was Springs which also turned the trick that year. Since then the Zephyrs had won seven straight over the Ledgers.

Midwest Prop conference teams coached by former Neenah residents split even in a pair of Saturday tests. Dan Malchow's Northwestern Prep team of Watertown beat Racine Lutheran 19-7 and Wayland academy of Beaver Dam coached by Martin Meyer, lost to Country Day 21-7.

Neenah's Tom Wiesner gained a net of 11 yards in eight attempts in Wisconsin's 21-0 loss to Purdue Saturday. He also returned one kickoff 20 yards.

St. Patrick Grade Eleven Drops 8-6 Test to Appleton

Menasha — St. Patrick Grade school dropped an 8-6 decision to the Appleton South Side Athletic club team Sunday afternoon at Butte des Morts field.

The winners scored a safety in the third quarter and got their touchdown in the final period. They were halted once but came back to score the next time they had the ball. The Shamrocks tallied on the next kickoff when Jim Rather brought it back all the way, about 60 yards.

The Shamrocks, who have a 1-2 league record and 1-3 overall mark, play at Kimberly Holy Name Thursday in a Catholic Boy league test and entertain Little Chute St. John at Butte des Morts field next Sunday afternoon.

Zephyrs Drop 10-6 Test to Springers

Menashans Hold Statistical Edge But Fail to Score Until Late in Final Period

Fond du Lac — St. Mary dominated almost every statistical department but they still play off on the score and the Zephyrs dropped a 10-6 Fox Valley Catholic conference decision to Fond du Lac Springs here Sunday afternoon.

Both teams now have 1-1 records in FVCC play. St. John leads with a win and a tie.

St. Mary out-first-downed the winners 14 to 6 and it had a 199 to 101 rushing edge but couldn't get the ball across the goal line until the waning minutes of the game and by that time the Springs had a 10-0 lead.

The Zephyrs were on the march in the first quarter when Norm Brown fumbled and the Ledgers' Steve Georg recovered and ran it 18 yards to the visitors' 40. Two plays brought the ball to the 30 from where Quarterback Paul Kremer flipped to End Jim Flesch, who caught the ball about 10 yards beyond the line of scrimmage and went the rest of the way to score.

Fullback Bill Schommer plunged for the extra point

25 with the receiver all alone. Pete Snyder then tried a field goal from the 18 but it was short.

St. Mary, which didn't punt all afternoon, gambled on a fourth down and 11 yards to go situation on the Springs 49 in the fourth period but was halted. The Ledgers moved to the Zephyr 9 in 12 plays and Lloyd Post booted a fourth down field goal from the 18 with 7:30 left. It was the first successful kick of any kind for the hosts, who have run or passed for all of their extra points this year.

Menashans Tally The Menashans took the next kickoff on their 18 and with Brown and Bob Jensen doing most of the carrying, scored in 13 plays. Jensen carried the ball from the 10 to the four and took it over the goal on the next play. Jensen was stopped on a rushing attempt for a point.

Just 2:19 remained when the score was made and Springs was successful in running out the clock.

Top Ground Gainers Brown and Jensen bore the brunt of St. Mary's ground gaining with the former getting 74 yards in 14 attempts and the latter 63 in 15.

St. Mary now has an overall 3-2 record for the year the same as Springs. The Zephyrs meet St. John at home Friday night in their next league start.

Menasha — Willie Karnopp of the Braves team notched a 246 game and 592 series to lead the L.L. Mixed Couples league Sunday night at the Menasha Recreation alleys.

Harvey Badke of the Starling club posted a 571 set for honors in the Sunday night Bird Mixed Couples circuit at the Recreation lanes.

No honor scores were rolled in the Winnebago Fish Mixed league Saturday night at the Recreation alleys.

Mantle Team Wins Syracuse, N. Y. — Mickey Mantle's 2-run homer gave his American league stars a 4-2 victory over Willie Mays' National leaguers in an exhibition game Sunday. Mays and Gil Hodges homered for the NL runs.

Kalamazoo Paper Companies Seek Merger Approval

Kalamazoo, Mich. (AP)—A merger of the Sutherland Paper company and the KVP company, both of Kalamazoo, has been recommended to stockholders by representatives of the board of directors of the two firms.

If approved by stockholders and the Securities and Exchange commission, the merger would bring together two paper industry firms with combined annual sales topping $100,000,000.

The official announcement of the proposed merger was signed by Dwight L. Stocker, president of KVP, formerly known as the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment company; and by L. M. Crockett and William J. Lawrence, Jr., a 2 man interim board named to direct Sutherland operations after the resignation Thursday of E. Wendell Smith as president.

Under the proposed plan, 1.2 shares of common stock of the new company would be swapped for each share of KVP and one share of common stock of the new firm for each share of Sutherland.

Menasha Firm To Form Plans For New School

Poy Sippi High District Under Fire at Hearing

Poy Sippi — The East Wauwasha Union High school advisory committee has named McMahon Engineering company of Menasha to handle plans for a proposed $325,000 high school.

However, the fate of the proposed construction will be under fire Tuesday night when county school committees air petitions aimed at removing considerable land from the non-operating high school district. The state also has voiced disapproval of the high school plan.

The committee interviewed representatives from 15 firms before settling on the Menasha firm.

Given Authority — The adjourned annual district meeting on Sept. 8 gave the committee authority to move forward in planning for the proposed high school. The general proposal has been studied since 1956.

The state has opposed the proposed school on the grounds the area is serviced by enough schools at present.

The committee proposes to construct on a 20-acre site south of Poy Sippi. It proposes the school to have classrooms, a multi-purpose room and agricultural shops. The purchase of the land is being held up by legal difficulties.

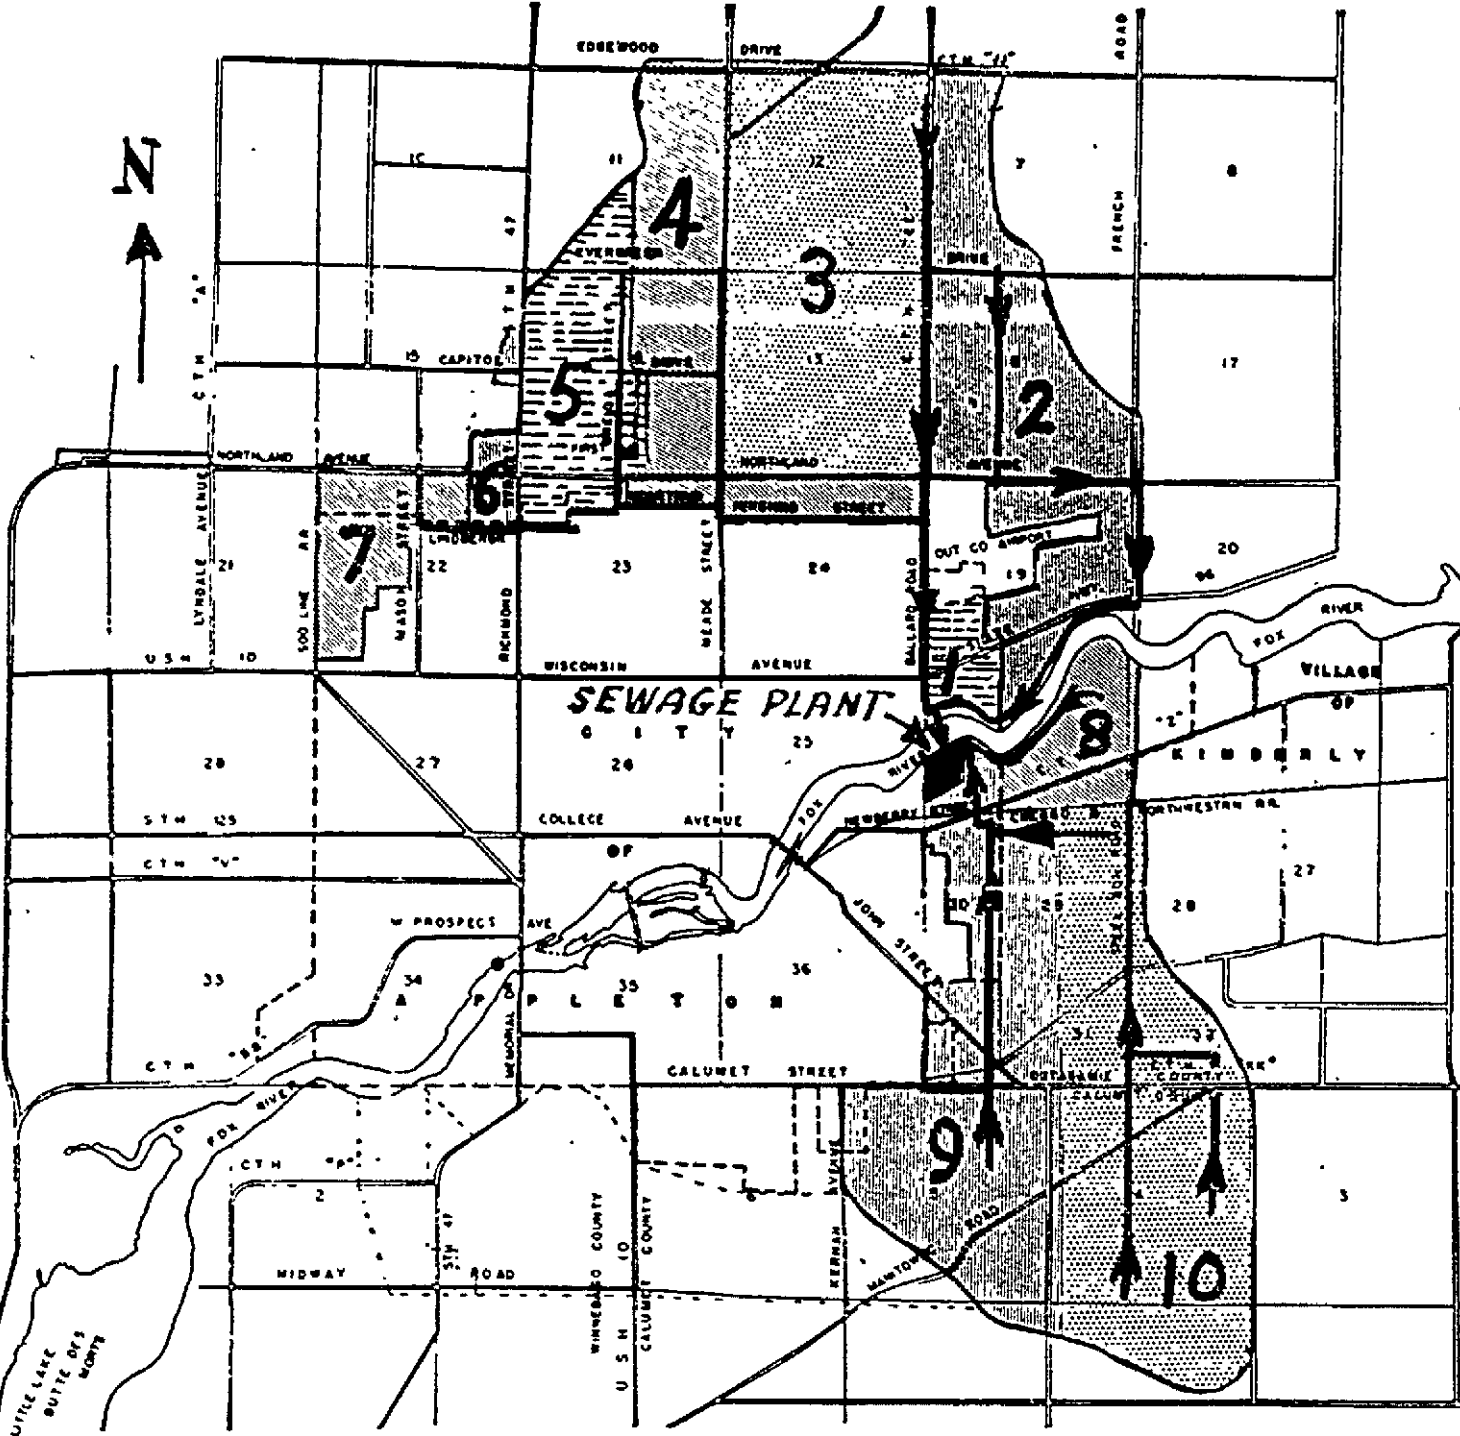

The county school committees' hearing will be conducted at Phillips hall here at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

Buckingham Guards Retreat From Tourists

London — Tourists have driven the Buckingham palace guard inside the gate. A Yankee may have done it. They are retreating without a fight — and with a sigh of relief.

The war office came to the rescue of the guardsmen who have marked their paces outside the wrought iron railings of the royal palace with orders to hold their fire — and temper — regardless of provocation. Sightseers often got in their way and even tried to tempt them to lose their frozen-face poise.

Under the new orders, effective Saturday, the guardsmen will remain on view but do their parading protected by the railing.

Area Assessments for Sanitary sewer interceptor and trunk construction will be made by prorating total cost over these 10 assessment districts, if the city council approves after committee of the whole (informal) discussion Oct. 21. The districts would be served by $714,900 in interceptors, $586,500 in trunks. Costs by districts for an average 70 by 120-foot lot figure to $14.50 in District 1; $68.50 in 2; $49.80 in 3; $57.70 in 4; $63.20 in 5; $87.50 in 6; $159

Band of Dead Fish Pollutes Gulf Stream

St. Petersburg, Fla. — "A heavily concentrated band of dead fish . . . seven miles in width" lay offshore along a 40-mile stretch of the Gulf of Mexico today.

"We just hope the wind won't change," said the report of Dr. Robert F. Hutton, chief biologist of the state marine laboratory. A wind shift could bring the rotting carcasses ashore in large numbers. Small numbers of the fish, killed by concentrations of a tiny marine organism commonly called Red Tide, washed ashore yesterday but officials said "the over-all situation has improved considerably."

The tide carried many of them back out and workers quickly cleaned up the remainder.

No Smoking Classes in Berkeley, Official Says

Berkeley, Calif. — California officials deny public school systems have agreed to teach teen agers courses concerning cigarette smoking and cancer. Dr. Sol R. Baker of Los Angeles, chairman of the American Cancer society's California education committee, said yesterday he was wrong in announcing that San Francisco and Los Angeles school systems would participate in such a program.

These Days

Public Apathy Due to Bad Leading By Administration, Pulpit, Press

BY GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY New York — According to a memorandum which Prof. Arthur Schlesinger

Harvard voluntarily prepared to instruct the Democratic party, President Eisenhower's most important contribution to national life is a well-advertised apathy. This is a professional wise-crack. Nevertheless, the apathy does exist. Perhaps never before in history were the American people so apathetic about their affairs.

That this country lacks stirring leadership is obvious. But the reasons are not obvious. It is a curious phenomenon, this apathy. It is as though an older generation has become very tired and youth has not yet become diverted from the discovery of sex to the discovery of ideals. Our children were taught to accept the one world concept, and when they had a look at the murderous world into which they came after World War II, they settled down to rock-n-roll and Elvis Presley.

Public Opinion Formation Leadership in the United States always has been found in the pulpit and the press. The church regarded itself as the keeper of the morals of the nation and from pulpits respected men thundered against improprieties, indecencies and corruption. Their voices formed public opinion. It does no particular good to look back to other days, except to say that they are no more. The American pulpit is soft; it does not thunder. The press, too, has changed its character over the past 50 years. In this country, public opinion was formed in the editorials of daily newspapers and weekly magazines.

Personal journalism existed in the United States throughout the history of the country. The newspaper was published because a man was compelled to say something, to assume local leadership. The editor and publisher was usually the same man.

Today, on the whole, the American newspaper eschews this role of leadership of opinion. The costs of owning a newspaper or a magazine, of manufacturing an issue for publication, are so great that more and more leadership opinion is subordinated to the satisfaction of readers' tastes, because taxes and labor costs have forced upon the press business responsibilities which earlier generations took in their stride.

Only those who risk responsibility and are fearless as to consequence can lead.

Chiang Predicts Recovery of China Mainland

Taipei, Formosa — Chiang Kai-shek has predicted today his Chinese nationalists forces would be fighting the Chinese communists on the mainland next year.

He declared the nationalists would wipe out the Peiping regime and restore China's position as "a free, independent country."

Chiang made his statement in a speech during a "Double Tenth" holiday rally outside his Taipei headquarters. Double Tenth, the main holiday on Formosa, is so named because Chinese nationalist independence day falls on the 10th day of the 10th month.

Chiang said the main task facing this year is to overcome the setbacks resulting from the August floods that ravaged eastern and southern sections of the island.

"Next year," he asserted, "our task will be to rid the mainland of the communists."

Greenleaf Seeks Village Status

Greenleaf — A special referendum is scheduled Wednesday for residents to determine whether they want to become a village or not.

The election was called by Judge E. M. Duquaine after he ruled the area had the characteristics of a village. Polls will open at 9 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. at Wrightstown town hall.

Census reveals a population of 248 and an area of 366 acres.

The Fifty-fifth... and the Finest!

It was shortly after the turn of the century that the first Cadillac car—"the automobile deliberately built to the highest standards it is possible to enforce on the production of a motor car"—made its appearance.

Every year since—save for a period when Cadillac devoted its energies to the national defense—a new interpretation of this unique goal has been presented to the world's motorists.

The superlative motor car illustrated above is the fifty-fifth in this unprecedented succession of distinguished automotive creations. And it is, without question, the finest Cadillac of them all!

Never before has Cadillac artistry created such elegance of form and line. It has a commanding presence that is uniquely Cadillac.

Never before has Cadillac engineering produced so abundantly. The car is smooth and quiet to a degree that challenges belief. Never before has Cadillac design and craftsmanship provided such interior luxury. And the complement of conveniences and appointments has never been more satisfying.

No matter how many of the fifty-five Cadillacs you may have owned and enjoyed over the years—you still have a wonderful experience ahead of you in this latest "car of cars."

We suggest you see and drive it very soon. And we hope you will come expecting great things.

Abolitionist Band Seized Harpers Ferry 100 Years Ago

BY JOHN LUNDQUIST
Harpers Ferry, W.Va.—The men were eager to get going. For weeks, most had been hiding by day in the farm house, venturing out only at night.

Now in the chill rain of an October evening, they loaded a wagon with a sledge hammer, crowbars and a quantity of pikes—long-handled poles with sharp metal tips.

A bearded old man with fierce, burning eyes mounted the wagon and tugged at the reins. It creaked onto the narrow Maryland road. Eighteen men fell in two abreast behind, rifles on their shoulders and two revolvers in each belt.

A century ago the gulf between North and South was rapidly widening. The smoldering animosity over slavery was yet to be ignited by one dramatic, emotionally charged incident. This was provided by a stubborn, passionate man and the setting he chose was Harpers Ferry. Here is the first of two stories on John Brown's momentous raid 100 years ago.

The date was Sunday, Oct. 16, 1859, and John Brown was beginning a march that led to the scaffold and immortality. His target: Harpers Ferry and its federal arsenal four miles away across the Potomac in Virginia. His mission: To free the slaves, everywhere. The men trudging through the darkness a century ago next Friday prepared to kindle emotions that would burst into the great conflagration of the Civil war.

Town of 3,000
The Harpers Ferry Brown chose for his blow at slavery was a community of some 3,000, compared with today's population of 1,500. It was still in Virginia; not until the Civil war did the western part of the Old Dominion split off and become a new state, West Virginia.

Then, its industry was mainly weapons, an important factor in Brown's choice. Harpers Ferry had an armory for general arms manufacture, a rifle works, and a federal armory containing substantial amounts of munitions and military equipment.

The town is located on the low point of land between the arms of a Y formed by the confluence of the Potomac and Shenandoah rivers. In those days, bridges stretched out from the city across the Potomac on one side and the Shenandoah on the other.

Today, most residents of Harpers Ferry—which is planning a commemorative observance next weekend—are employed by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, at a limestone quarry, at two race-tracks at nearby Charles town, or as national park service workers.

Then, as now, Harpers Ferry was a quiet community while Brown was gathering weapons and men at a rented farm five miles away in Maryland. Since his last foray into bleeding Kansas earlier in 1859, he had grown a beard for disguise. To the few neighbors around his Maryland hideout his party was known as I. Smith and Sons, mineral prospectors.

Look of Leader

John Brown had the look and manner of a leader. Although 59, he was vigorous in step and bearing. His firm, white-bearded face was topped by a shock of thick hair.

Most of Brown's raiders, including three of his sons, were young. Their average age was 25. Five were Negroes or had Negro blood. Several had been with Brown in Kansas. Three stayed behind at the farmhouse as the main contingent marched toward Harpers Ferry.

There is argument about Brown's precise plan, but apparently he expected that both anti-slavery whites and Negro slaves in this border region would rise to his support once he had struck forcefully at slaveholders. Some of his statements indicated that he envisioned a slave uprising that would spread, under his direction, throughout the south.

His raid started methodically enough. Two men cut telegraph wires on the Maryland side. Then his band crossed the Potomac bridge, captured its civilian guard, and moved in on the arsenal, armory and rifle works without opposition. Telegraph lines on the Virginia side also were cut, temporarily isolating the town.

With a flair for the dramatic, Brown sent a detachment of raiders five miles into Virginia to the estate of Col. Lewis Washington, a great-grandnephew of George Washington. Rousing the colonel from sleep, the raiders forced him to hand over a cherished sword presented to George Washington as a gift from Frederick the Great.

The sword, along with Col. Washington, was brought back to Brown, who strapped it on. Half a dozen Negro slaves, who reportedly lived as well-treated servants on Washington's estate, were "freed" and hustled, wide-eyed with fright, to the arsenal.

Free Negro Killed

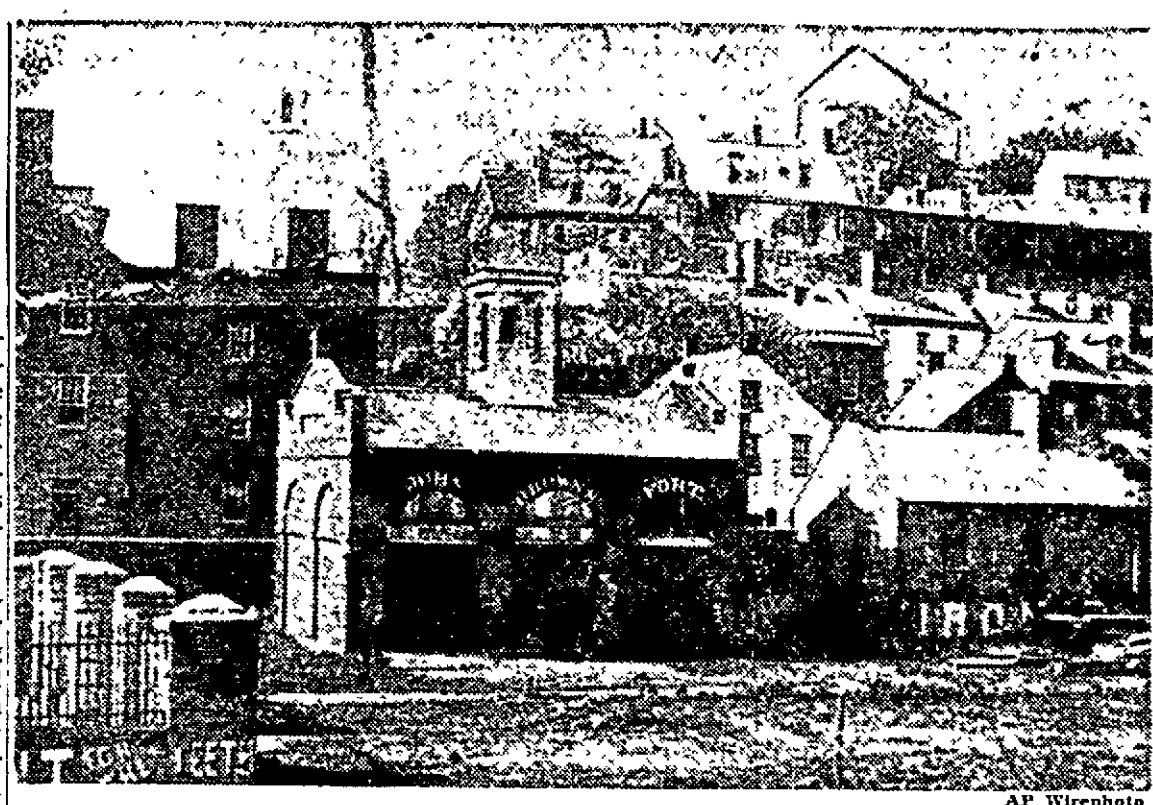

Soon the town was awakening to the intrusion, and the 34 hours that Brown's raid lasted were crowded with pathos, revenge and courage. There was also irony. A raider guarding the potomac bridge mortally wounded Heyward Shepherd, a free Negro baggage master who had failed to obey a command to halt.

Other victims included the town's beloved mayor, Fontaine Beckham, who was shot peeking around a water tank Monday afternoon to see what was happening to his community. Two raiders captured by citizens were killed.

There were also examples of courage and brotherly compassion. A Mr. Brua, among Brown's hostages in the fire engine house where the raiders holed up when they met resistance, braved the chance of being mistaken for a raider, went out and rescued one of Brown's wounded men in the street. He carried him to the Wager House. Then, true to his pledge, returned to his captors.

As day broke Monday, Brown's chances to get away with booty from the arsenal slipped by. No support came for his crusade. Militiamen quickly recaptured the Potomac bridge and left Brown without an escape route to Maryland. Snipers occupied positions on the heights above the fire house and arsenal. Other militiamen occupied the Shenandoah bridge and Brown's force was trapped.

By Monday night, marines under Col. Robert E. Lee—later to command the Confederate armies in the Civil war—arrived from Washington to spell the militia which had rushed in from nearby towns. Lee's assistant was Lt. J.E.

John Brown and Some of his raiders holed up in the fire engine house at Harpers Ferry. It later became known as John Brown's Fort.

B. Stuart, who would soon be plaguing Union armies as the South's ablest cavalry leader.

John Brown and his remaining men were boxed up in the small, brick fire engine house, only five among them still unwounded. Among those dying on the cold floor were two of Brown's sons, Oliver and Watson. Oliver, just 20, died Monday night. Watson lay moaning nearby, beseeching his father to end his sufferings.

"If you must die, die like a man," John Brown said. By next morning, Watson, 24, was dead.

Death in his family was no stranger to Brown. Seven of the 20 children by two wives died in childhood. Another was accidentally scalded to death. His first wife died after bearing her seventh child.

Now as he crouched with his helpless raiders and about 10 prisoners in the fire house, death drew near to John Brown himself.

Herter Puts Teeth Into U. S. Policies

Turns Tables on Nikita, Forces Possible Disunity Admission

BY WILLIAM S. WHITE
Washington—The proper Bostonian who is our secretary of state is now showing to the Red Chinese quite as much steel beneath his New England glove as ever did his predecessor, John Foster Dulles.

Indeed, Sec. Christian Archibald Herter has developed a Herter policy toward China that goes beyond anything attempted in the old days. In the process he has turned the tables on Nikita Khrushchev. The greatest difficulty ever faced by the United States in the cold war is that we are the undoubted leaders of the western alliance, but we are a free people dealing with other free peoples.

Weakness Exploited
Khrushchev has exploited this weakness numberless times. Now, however, it is Christian Herter who is making Nikita Khrushchev sweat, rather than the other way round. Herter has proclaimed the doctrine that since Khrushchev always has said the Soviet Union is the infallible head of the worldwide communist show, Khrushchev now must accept responsibility for curbing his aggressive partners in China.

There is, of course, always a temptation to grasp at thin straws. But this time it looks as if we have got hold of a first-rate stick. For Khrushchev either must restrain the Chinese communists or publicly advertise an immense crack in the massive monolith of international communism.

Within a few days Sec. Herter will celebrate his first half year in office. Six months is a short span on which to measure the effectiveness of a secretary of state. But it is not too brief a time to make a pretty good preliminary estimate.

Several Changes
Herter has made many changes, mostly in emphasis rather than principle. He has revived the state department's policy planning board, of which Mr. Dulles made very little use. He has delegated far more authority to subordinates.

Moreover, Herter's regime has created changes in manner. Dulles was respected by his allied associates, but rarely deeply liked. Herter is both respected and deeply liked. Herter is encouraging the president to accept his unique constitutional responsibility for ultimate foreign policy. This Dulles never did. Among those who always hesitated to interrupt or advise John Foster Dulles was Dwight D. Eisenhower himself.
